Our Dreams Take Flight

Volume 53
Thomas Worthington High School
300 W. Dublin-Granville Rd.
Worthington, Ohio 43085

Thomas Worthington High School has experienced many drastic changes over the past three years. However, the true cardinal pride will never leave its premises.

The Cardinal flag proudly flies in front of the new entrance to the building.

Many students at TWHS participated in the construction o the sculpture courtyard outside of the new art wing.

OUR DREAMS TAKE FLIGHT

Over the past three years those of us who have been a part of the Thomas Worthington family have sat anxiously watching as drastic changes took place right under our noses. Not a single person knew what to expect that first day back in 1990 when the original west end of the high school was torn to shreds, and the never ending construction began. Promise after promise had been made about the new and great things to come, but at the time it seemed we would never see the end of the insanity. Day after day students and staff tolerated the inconveniences of loud banging during class, dust particles constantly floating in the air, the occasional loss of electricity, and crowded hallways which resulted from the temporary plaster walls which were erected in various parts of the building. When the spring of 1993 finally came and the last of the construction workers had gone, Thomas Worthington was left with a long awaited silence echoing through its hallways, and the idea of a Dream School finally becoming reality.

> Thomas Worthington was left with a long awaited silence echoing through its hallways, and the idea of a Dream School had finally become reality.

The 1993-94 school year promises to be the year when all of our dreams take flight at TWHS. It is the first year since 1990 that there will be no construction taking place in any part of the building. Rather than simply waiting and wondering what our newly renovated school will be like when everything is complete, we actually have all of the pieces together this year, and we are living our dreams. Not one person at TWHS has gone unsatisfied since the changes have been completed. Just take a minute to think of all the things we had wished for and now have. The teachers have been granted a large accommodating work space, the Athletic department received and entire new and beautiful complex, the Art department was moved from the not-so-efficient facilities of the Annex to a brand new wing right here in the school and were also given and entire courtyard to decorate as they pleased. In other areas of the school, the librarians were presented with larger and better equipped facilities, the Communications and Technology class also profited from the change by the new studio which was built and by having the dynacom system installed they are able to involve the entire school in their activities. Many of both staff and students at TWHS have been fulfilled since the split of the schools, and it would be safe to say that the separation gave a positive impact on everyone.

1994 is the year for TWHS to stand out and above from everyone else. We have everything we could possibly ask for, and now is the time to use it.

CHANGES

THAT WAS THEN THIS IS NOW

The times they are a changin' and so are we. Here at Thomas Worthington High School, many changes have taken place, some so drastic that even the name has changed. Many so-called "set" traditions here at Thomas Worthington High School have been altered or have vanished completely.

The Ten Man Kazoo Band started in the early seventies as a group of ten seniors who tried to raise other students' spirits. At the end of each year the group picked a crop of ten students to follow in their footsteps. This tradition continued for several years under an advisor until TMKB mooned the entire school during a pep rally in the mid seventies. Modern day versions of senior shirts like the ones seen today, were not concocted until 1987. They started out as uniforms for the girls' powder puff football team and emerged into what we see presently.

Several decades ago, the dances were different than today. Homecoming was very traditional. Everyone attended the football game in the appropriate dance attire and walked from the stadium to the gymnasium for the dance. After the dance, groups of people would usually walk to a nearby restaurant, talk and grab a bite to eat. What is commonly known as the Holly Hop or Winter Dance replaced the Christmas Formal in the sixties. What we know now as the Valentine's Dance, used to be called the Sadie Hawkins Dance. Just like the status quo it was girl-ask-guy. In February, the school held the annual Cardinal Queen Dance. This was a semi-formal event in which a Yearbook Queen was elected by community members. Prom used to be very extravagant. Twenty-five years ago the decorations were much more elaborate. The junior class decorated for this event much like they do today. So much time was required to do this that the juniors were allowed to skip classes on Friday to set everything up for the big night.

> "The arrangement of the school has changed along with the overall size."

Yes kids, believe it or not, our freedom of expression was not always so prevalent here at our high school. Jeans were forbidden, can you imagine!?, and males had to wear collared shirts neatly tucked in. A three day suspension was issued for having shirttails hanging out. Females were required to dress in below-the-knee skirts, and most wore pearls to match their skirts.

In the sixties, the electives were quite different. There were not as many choices as there are currently. Instead of taking a foreign language, the students of yesteryear took things such as notehand and shorthand.

That dreaded thing we call P.E. never ended for the "happy days" era. They had to take it every year throughout their high school career.

The Thomas Worthington we know and love today was seen much differently through the eyes of teenagers twenty-five years ago. The arrangement of the school has changed along with the overall size. All students from both the junior and senior highs roamed the same building together, but the youngsters and veterans were not allowed to mix. This meant the junior high students could not cross into the high school area and vice-versa.

Two more points of interest should be noted by all Cardinal readers. Open lunch resulted in the early 70's because the president of Student Council, Jim Mack, snuck out everyday to go eat. Even more exciting, twenty-five years ago at a particularly memorable graduation ceremony in the stadium, an identical brother and sister had no clothing on under their robes. As a result, the audience was appalled by the sight of their buck-naked bodies. Those crazy Cards will never learn.

By Dave Hunt, Marcie Scherr

Defiant students Stephanie Enochs, Beth Stover, Claire Schneider, Paige Renske and Sarah Pettigrew would obviously be violating the dress code of yesteryear.

As Kaci Blume, Carrie Goodman, and Ian Edgerton smile gleefully for the Kodak, Greg Geissler slyly attempts to dig out that crusty slimy secretion from his ear.

David Ayers' dream is to buy a matching green glow ring like Heather Kendall's. (We think she picked this one up at Big Bear.)

Sean Clement is so famished that he attempts to devour Amanda Lowe's head. Tim McTigue and Dave Plouffe just smile coyly as if nothing is happening.

IMPROVEMENTS

DREAMS OF A BETTER SCHOOL

A school cannot be successful without cooperation from the administration, staff, and most importantly, the student body. Because of this, we conducted a survey of the student body concerning its overall opinion of school policies and the atmosphere at TWHS. Various homerooms from all grades were surveyed. The results were tabulated and are reported in the adjoining table.

When we constructed this survey, we included a section for the students to further express their opinion with additional comments on the back. Many of the comments pertained to the open lunch policy. Of course the seniors complained that underclassmen were going out to lunch. The juniors and sophomores rebuttled this by asking for open lunch privileges to be extended to them. All the freshmen complained of overcrowding in the cafeteria. They were also upset about being forced to sit on the floor. Then there were the simple requests to regulate the heat in the school, fix the dynacoms, and paint the press box.

Included are some of the most interesting comments.

"Juniors should be allowed to go out to lunch," states one freshman, "Because I have to sit on the floor in the cafeteria."

" The heating in this school is too irregular," complains one male junior.

" Why is the press box cream? We are red and blue," points out a male senior.

"We need more school spirit. For example, why wasn't there a pep rally for boys' soccer or girls' cross country ?" questions a female student

" There is no Dynacom system in the bandroom," complains a male band member.

Phillip Hickman, who was kind enough to put his name on his paper, suggests that, "freedom of speech is very much threatened by the current round of political correctness."

From the large number of comments we received, we realized that there are many problems and concerns throughout the student body. We thank the students for their effort in completing the surveys. Maybe somebody will take notice, and the end result will be a better school for everybody!

Below: Amy Baumgardner updates the students on the Student Council's progress.

"Oh no, the Dynacom isn't working again," exclaims Kaci Blume as Anne Hamdorf watches her frustration.

RIVALRY

DOES TENSION EXIST?

Ever since Worthington High School split in 1991, the administrations of both schools have tried their best to prevent a bitter rivalry from arising between Kilbourne and Thomas Worthington. The plans to accomplish this included joint events such as dances, and limited athletic competitions between the sports which draw large crowds. The question is, has a rivalry developed between the two schools, despite all the steps that have been taken to prevent it? After talking to students and faculty from both schools, mixed opinions were expressed on whether or not tension exists between the two schools.

When administrators met before the schools split, they formed a special committee made up of students, faculty, and parents. The purpose of this committee was to stress unity between TWHS and WKHS. Along with unity, the schools wanted to establish their own identities as well. Decisions had to be made on which aspects of the schools would remain together and which would become separate.

To promote unity, the schools decided to offer the same classes to all of their students except for certain ones which have small enrollment. Although some classes are held at only TWHS or WKHS, students are allowed to travel between schools to take the classes of their choice. The schedules of the two schools are set to coincide with one another so that the events of the day run concurrently. Students from both schools are to be admitted to all dances, no matter where the dance is being held, as long as an I.D. is presented. The 1994 graduation party was also held as a joint event.

> "Mixed opinions were expressed on whether or not tension exists between WKHS and TWHS."

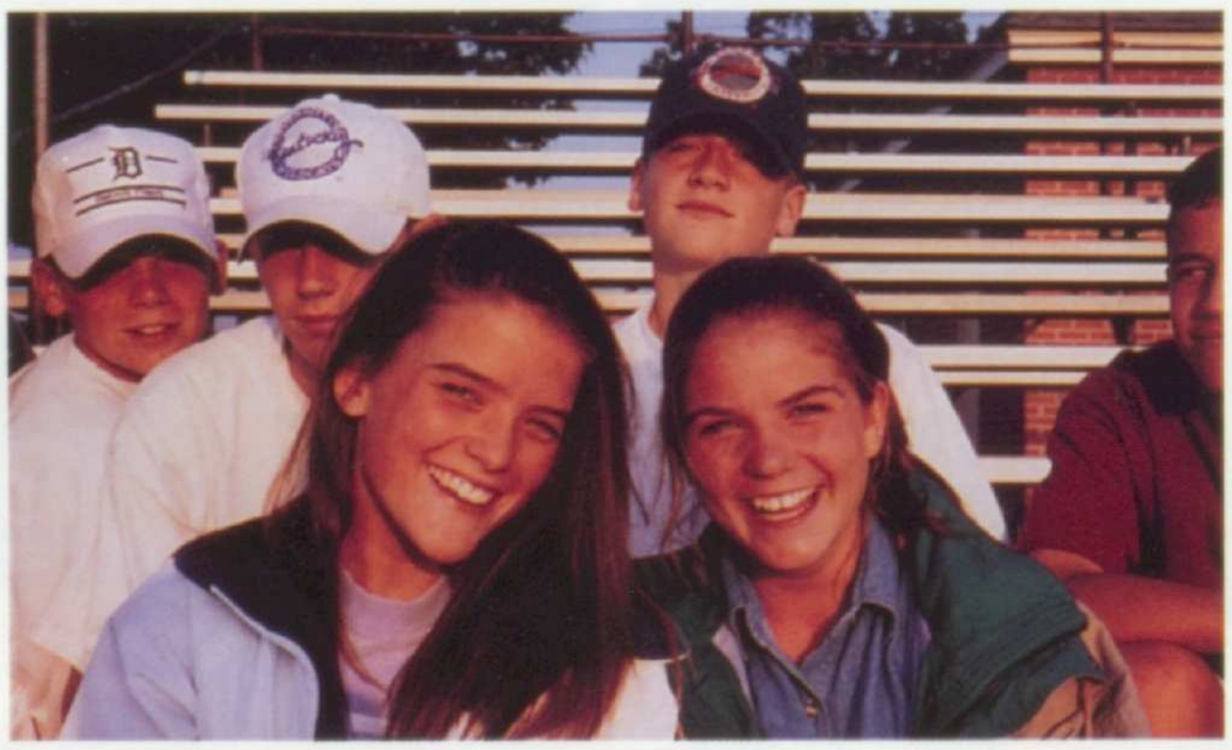
Most of the sports teams split as well, giving the other O.C.C. teams a headache knowing that they had to compete against not one but two Worthington high schools. However, a few sports teams did not split with the schools and still compete as one, such as the swim team and water polo team. The boys' gymnastics teams work out together throughout the entire season.

Two very separate schools exist, and each school wants to establish its own identity. The schools held different Homecoming , Prom, and Valentines' dances. They also developed different clubs so more people will have an opportunity to participate in school activities.

TWHS principal, Mr. Northrup, does not feel that a significant rivalry exists between the two schools; however, he does enjoy seeing Thomas Worthington teams beat Kilbourne teams in sports competition. Mr. Porta, principal of Kilbourne, believes that, "Of course students from both schools will think their school is the best; that's just an example of school spirit". One anonymous Kilbourne staff member feels that a rivalry does exist, but that it isn't a problem because no one talks about it. One TWHS student commented, "There isn't a rivalry because people have friends at both schools, but in a few years when no one knows each other, it will get worse."

No matter how administrators try to prevent a rivalry between the schools some tension will always exist. Of course, in years to come it can grow or deteriorate; however, most of what happens will depend on the students. Hopefully all of the students can take pride in both of the schools and not let the competition get in the way of friendships.

By Christi Nigh, Billy Lawhon, Alison Offenburger, and Meredith Mehlman



"Obviously Sherri Bossart and fellow TWHS students do not mind the presence of WKHS student Megan Senecal."

Voicing their opinion on Worthington Kilbourne's imitation rock is a favorite pastime of seniors Laura Bukovek, Paige Renske, and Christi Nigh.

KILBOURNE

THE WAY IT WAS, THE WAY IT IS

> When the freshmen were at main campus they stood out like a sore thumb. Now the freshmen at TWHS can at least pretend they are sophomores.

The class of '94 was the last freshman class to attend the all freshmen building, Kilbourne. For over twenty years, the freshmen of Worthington came together at Kilbourne for their first year of high school. It was a good transition building for the aspiring upperclassmen. This was a good way to meet new people and to prepare for the next three years.

Along with the benefits of the ninth grade building came many disadvantages. The majority of the freshmen spent the year commuting for classes, assemblies and afterschool activities. It was a hassle commuting to the high school and trying to fit in with the upper classmen. When freshmen were at main campus, they stood out like a sore thumb and were teased accordingly. Now the freshmen at TWHS can at least pretend to be sophomores. Mr. Richard Bates, the old Kilbourne principal, knew how to deal with freshmen and the name-calling. His strong mediating abilities earned him a job as an administrator for Worthington Kilbourne High School, which was built upon the closing of old Kilbourne.

Presently, what used to be the ninth grade building, is a middle school. This comes as a surprise to most people. The new name is Kilbourne Middle School. When the class of '94 "closed Kilbourne", the plan was to convert the building into administrative offices. However, now it serves as a school for 300 pre-teens. Grade levels in the school range from sixth to eighth grade. Pamela Van Horn is the head principal at the new school. One student mentioned that, "It is fun going there to school because there aren't that many people so you get to meet everyone." No one knows how long the building will remain as a middle school.

"Lucky me, I am going to Homecoming with a big stud," thinks Alli McCarthy as she describes her date Todd Camp.

"Watch out Main Campus, here we come!" think these freshmen girls. Little do they know that the fun is already over.

JOBS

PREPARING FOR THE REAL WORLD

Teachers and faculty are not the only people with "real" jobs. Many students here at Thomas Worthington High School are preparing themselves for the real world by working. They have found out how difficult it is to balance academics, a job, and sports. The jobs are as diverse as the students who hold them and range from working at fast food restaurants to cleaning pools.

> "Teachers and faculty are not the only people with 'real jobs'."

Thomas Worthington even provides a head start into the work force called Occupational Work Adjustment (OWA). It is a program for students under the age of sixteen. Occupational Work Experience (OWE) is a program designed for students sixteen and older. Both programs provide students with a work experience during the school day. Mr. Terry Lichtenberg, coordinator of the OWA program, feels that the program helps kids who had a hard time in eighth grade through no fault of their own. James Weaver, a freshman at Thomas Worthington participates in this program. He works at the Worthington pool ninth and tenth periods, and although he only gets paid minimum wage, he enjoys his work and will probably participate in the program next year. OWA and OWE are not the only ways students explore careers. Many students hold jobs outside of school. Numerous students work part time before and after school and on the weekends. Some may have paper routes while others might work for restaurants such as Wendy's, Hoggy's, Bill Knapps, Leonardo's Pizza, or Kentucky Fried Chicken. Still, others work as lifeguards, hosts or hostesses, and janitors for country clubs and hotels such as Murfield, The Worthington Hills Country Club, The Hilton, and The Harley Hotel. Senior Jenny Brown works for Chick's Perfect Picture in the Worthington Mall and Marcie Scherr caters at the Columbus Zoo. Junior Scott Yoho works at Wilson's Floors, and Tyler Reinmuth works at Damon's.

It is important for students to receive experience through jobs to better prepare themselves for life after high school and college. Many students here at Thomas Worthington are ready for the real world and already have a head start.

THE ROCK

AN OLD TRADITION RETURNS HOME

One of the most popular traditions of Thomas Worthington High School is the painting of the rock. The rock has been sitting at the end of the driveway that leads to the student parking lot. Over the years, it has had many layers of paint applied to it, commemorating birthdays and sporting events, and even memories of lost loved ones.

Each year, the departing seniors bury the rock and and let the incoming seniors find it and dig it up. Last year, however, instead of burying the rock, the class of '93 dumped it into the Olentangy River. Many seniors had mixed feelings about retrieving the rock, but senior Nathan Swanson said, "It was pretty clever of them and I consider it a good challenge."

> "It was pretty clever of them and I consider it a good challenge."

Obviously, enough seniors also considered it a challenge because the rock was finally retrieved on Thursday, Oct. 13th, by Worthington Towing Company. They backed the truck up to the river, secured the rock with chains, and began to haul. As it was raised into the air and they were heading towards the front of the school, the rock dropped from the chains with a horrible crash. When it was resecured, it was finally returned to its original home. The tradition will now be continued, and as of Monday, Oct.18th, the rock received its first coat of paint from the senior class of 1994.

"Go get Mr. Northrup," yells Scott Pence, as Russ Mead contemplates which finger that man really is holding up.

Doesn't the rock look lonely in the Olentangy River where the class of '93 creatively dumped it?

This year at TWHS we had two newlyweds on our wonderful faculty, and they just happened to be married to each other. Ironically, both of these people also happen to work in the social studies department. Of course, I am talking about Bob and Judi Galasso.

We asked the twosome questions about their relationship; much to our surprise, the answers were not all the same. Bob did not think their first date was awkward, but Judi did because she had just returned from a three week trip in Europe and was afraid that "the stud" had changed his mind. Bob believes they first fell in love on February 26th, 1993 at 2:15 p.m; however Judi thinks it was the day before. I think they might have been pulling my leg on those answers. The Galasso's decided to get married on June 10th, 1993, but did not give us any mushy details about the proposal. Neither Judi nor Bob thought seeing each other before their classes was weird; Judi thinks it seems more uncomfortable for the students. They said they see each other very seldom during the school day. Much to the entire school's delight, they plan to keep teaching at TWHS. Returning to school after getting married was awkward for the Galasso's because their students and teaching buddies asked them so many questions. Bob and Judi never make plans to meet each other during the school day unless they have an important errand to run.

I hope this answers some of the many questions that the whole student body has in their minds but were afraid to ask. Good luck to the newlyweds.

Many talented artists attend our school. Some dra or paint and others sculpt with clay. However, usually onl their classmates or friends know of their work. For tha reason, the art department decided to showcase its student best creations through an art show.

The art teachers began this show in 1985. It is culmination of all the art projects throughout the year and held in the school library in conjunction with senio recognition night in May. The exhibits remain up fo approximately one week and consist of 650 pieces in th areas of jewelry, pottery, drawings, and paintings. previous years, the art show has drawn an excellent turnou and a positive response from the many who attend.

Some students excel beyond this show as well. Th Govenor's show, which Worthington students have alway faired well in, is held in April at the Riffe Tower i downtown Columbus. Much of the artwork is put on displa in the Worthington Board of Education building, and som decorates the school hallways. For those of us who have th opportunity to view these very talented artworks, w appreciate the hard work and effort of the artists.

Spirit Week 1993 was a great celebration of spirit indeed. Begining on Monday, Oct. 4, all of the homecoming court candidates were introduced in The Hottenroth Center. Tuesday was college sweatshirt day and Wednesday was the official dress up day. Thursday was the infamous toga day. Classic togas, smurf togas, and even red and blue togas were paraded around the halls of Thomas Worthington. On Friday , all of the students got a chance to show off their school spirit by wearing red and blue.

On Thursday night, Oct. 7, the bonfire took place. The spirit games were held, and the homecoming court was announced. Spirit Games included a pie-eating contest, a poem singing contest, a dizzy waiter contest, and, of course, the tug-of-war. Alex Chamberlain was crowned Homecoming Queen and Cori Foust was elected Senior Attendant. At the end of the ceremonies, the crowd followed the Queen to a bonfire that not many will forget.

Aimee Lambert, and Stuart Olson think that they are at a Van Halen concert instead of a schoo dance.

After a spirit week full of acitivities, the "Celebrate the Spirit" Homecoming Dance was an exciting and appropriate ending. This positive turn out can be credited to some new changes made this year. The biggest change was the focus less on formality and more on fun. As a result, there was a wide variety of outfits and more students were encouraged to come by themselves or with their friends to enjoy the dance, rather than coming with a date. Something else new was that this year the dance was entirely lead and directed by students, and overseen by Mr. Hutsko. Student leadership is being used much more and Homecoming is an excellent example of it's positive results. Despite all the change, some things remained the same. As always a beautiful queen, Alex Chamberlain, was crowned. She led the traditional dance to the music of MC PRODUCTIONS while lights dangled from the ceiling and red and blue crepe paper circled the gym. The evening was definately a night to remember.

Winter Holiday

Mistletoe

Seniors Rachel Freeman and Lori Thompson proudly display their religious diversity at the dance

Marking the official start of the Thomas Worthington holiday season is the holiday dance. For the second year in a row, Mistletoe Madness was a great success. Students were decked out in their holiday attire, from the usual Santa hats to a blinking menorah t-shirt. MC Productions once again provided great tunes as couples danced under the mistletoe. At eleven, with the end of the dance, students went home with visions of sugarplums dancing in their heads.

Alice in Valentine's

Seniors Amy Clark and Stan Bowen obviously know the meaning of fun this dance. Is that toil paper around her neck? Why are they so sweaty?

The Valentine's Dance took place in the T.W.H.S. gymnasium on February 12th, 1994. The theme was "A Trip Through Wonderland", and the decorations were done beautifully to display different scenes from Alice In Wonderland. Claire Mc Kee, with the help of other committee members, worked all day painting the scenery that made the dance so special. Students also had a choice of backdrops for their pictures, a relaxed fun scene and a formal one. The dance came to an end at eleven o'clock and students departed with fond memories of a very successful dance.

A Night on the Prom

Appropriately enough, this great looking group looks ready for "A Night on the Town," in downtown Columbus.

The much awaited dance of the year, Prom, was again a great success. However, this was not without the work of the Junior Prom Committee headed by Hilary Wheatley and Amber Hogan. Back to its original roots, the dance was held downtown at the Masonic Temple. This setting combined decorations of a huge top hat and skylines surrounding the room and completed the theme, A Night on the Town. Second Nature provided the tunes as the King and Queen, Kyle Pirnat and Lorena Opitz, led the last traditional dance of the year. Spirits were high after a great evening as everyone headed off to Afterhours.

For the first time in recent history, Afterhours was held at Westerville Athletic Club. While it was a new place to hold the party, the fun was just the same as always. Food, including pizza and subs, filled the Cafe, as the kareoke machine rocked into the early morning. Students also kept busy playing volleyball, raquetball, and swimming. Meanwhile, prizes were awarded from 12-4am, for the lucky ticketholders who won a microwave, VCR, refrigerator and more. Thanks to the help of the many parent volunteers, the night was once again a great success.

Bloodmobile

Cory Lee, Sherrie Bossart, Amy Budinski and Mike Zenisek are caught taking advantage of the benefits of giving blood. Is there a time limit on the snack table?

One spring morning, the American Red Cross Bloodmobile pulled into the parking lot of TWHS. It was a successful day as many students and faculty members were generous enough to donate. Donors were rewarded by a good feeling from helping someone else, and a quick snack before they returned to class. When asked Todd Camp said, "In all, it was definitely a day to be proud to be a Cardinal."

After watching the Talent Show, students walked down to the football field to enjoy the other activities of Cardinal Day.

It was beautiful for the third annual Cardinal Day, where students gathered to enjoy great music, food, drinks, and entertainment. It turned out to be a great day for students to celebrate their Cardinal Pride.

Unlike last year, it was a beautiful spring day for Cardinal Day, and this group looks ready to enjoy it.

Talent

One of the highlights of Cardinal Day every year is the talent show, and this year was no exception. Throughout the year, TWHS students have had the chance to display their abundance of talent through many concerts, plays and other performances. The talent show served as one last way for students to shine in the spotlight this year. The variety of acts included everything from singing to dancing, both hysterical and serious. Throughout it all, the audience stayed entertained and it was a great way to open Cardinal Day.

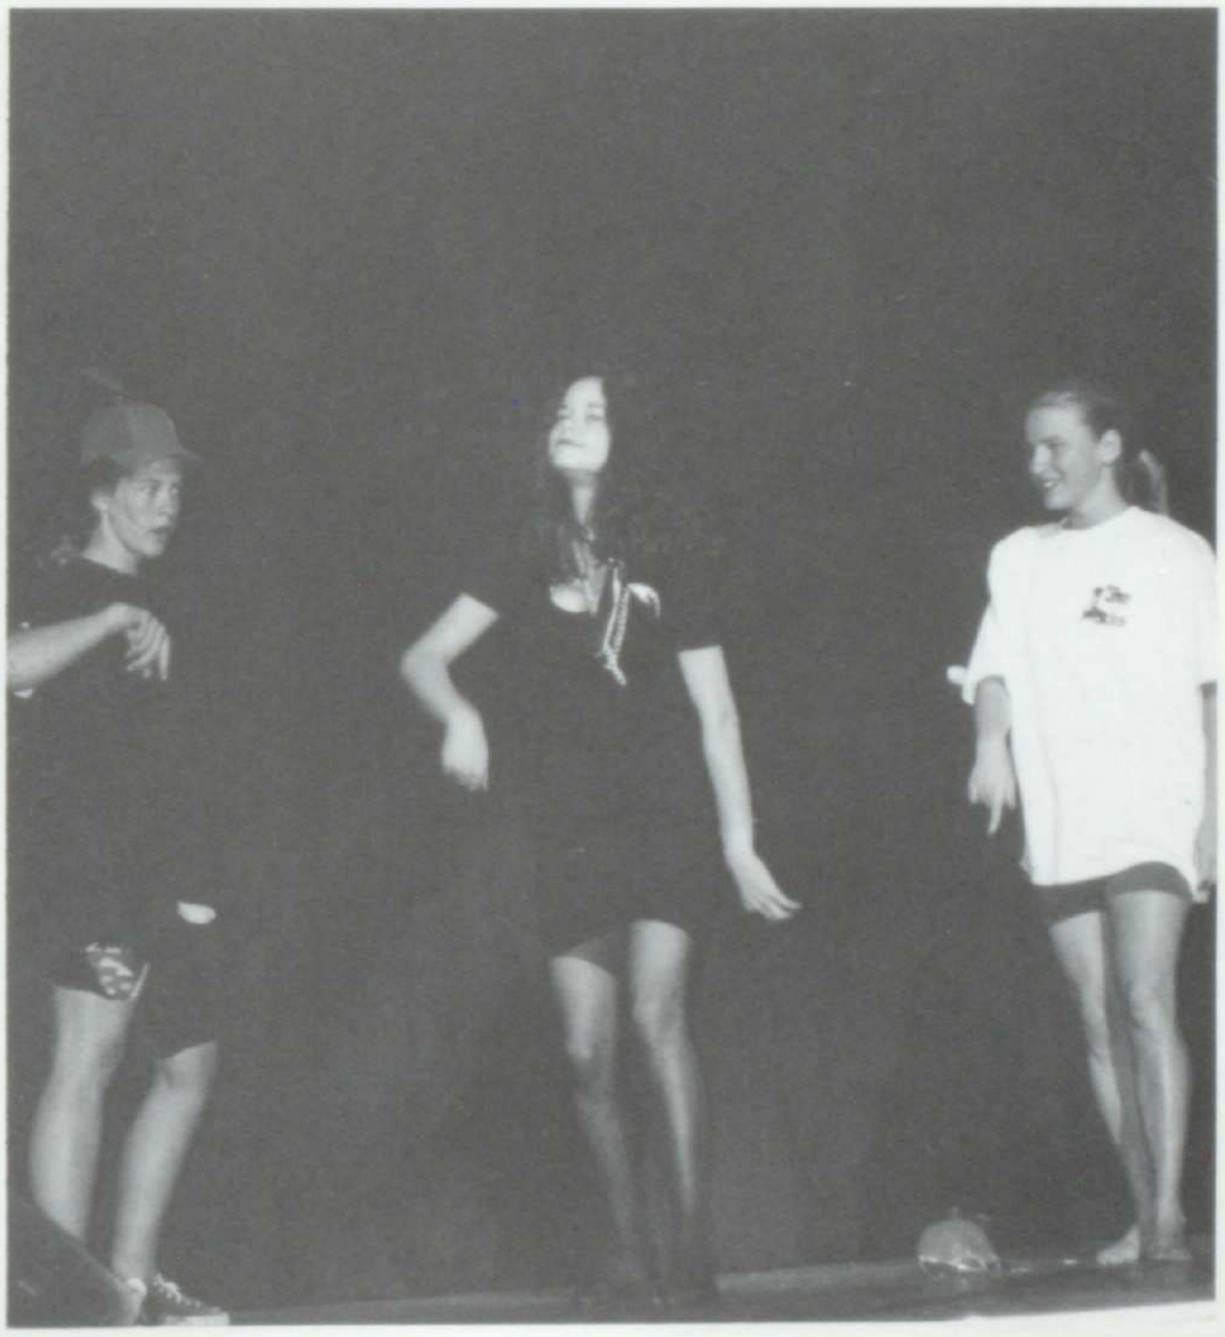
"How much longer do we have to keep singing?" questions Lisa Morse to Mandee Radford. "I don't know," mutters Mandee, "but my arm is getting tired, and this auditorium smells."



As Tina Landers performs her version of Michael Jackson's moonwalk, Lara Labeiko and Lija Kalnins look on in awe.

Celebration

Assemblies at TWHS are special, however the Celebration of Excellence is the major standout of the year. It is a time when the entire student body has one last chance to say good-bye to the graduating seniors. Seniors were presented awards and medals for their co-curricular achievement throughout their high school career. An added touch was the presentation of the person inducted into the Hall of Fame. This year it was Mr. Graber, who will be retiring this year and couldn't have been more pleased. The entire presentation was touching as it brought the year to a close.

Baccalaureate

Baccalaureate 1994 was held at St.Peter's church on Sunday, June 5th. The ceremony was planned entirely by the students and turned out to be unforgetable occasion. Touching speeches were given by students and faculty, and the choir sang beautifully, as usual.

Reach For

Patty Cassidy , Heather McVey, Jenny Cross and Amy Budinski smile for a picture after commencement, knowing that they do not have to return to high school.

Commencement 1994 carried on the tradition of excellence at Thomas Worthington High School. The theme " Reach For A New Day" represented Commencement 1994, which was held in the school's delightfully decorated gymnasium.

Speeches were given by Scott Pence, Student Body President, and Russ Mead, President of the Senior Class. Students who recieved all A's during their high school career put on a skit that highlighted such things as TWTV and proficiency testing.

Finally, diploma's were given by Dr. McElligot and Dr. Swinehart. As the last diploma was given out, the students threw their caps, closing one chapter of their life and begining a new one.

"Don't be afraid, keep your head up, act proud, and most importantly, never, never, never let them see you sweat," mutters Megan Kelly as she prepares an important board member for his upcoming speech. "One more thing, you're stepping on my foot."

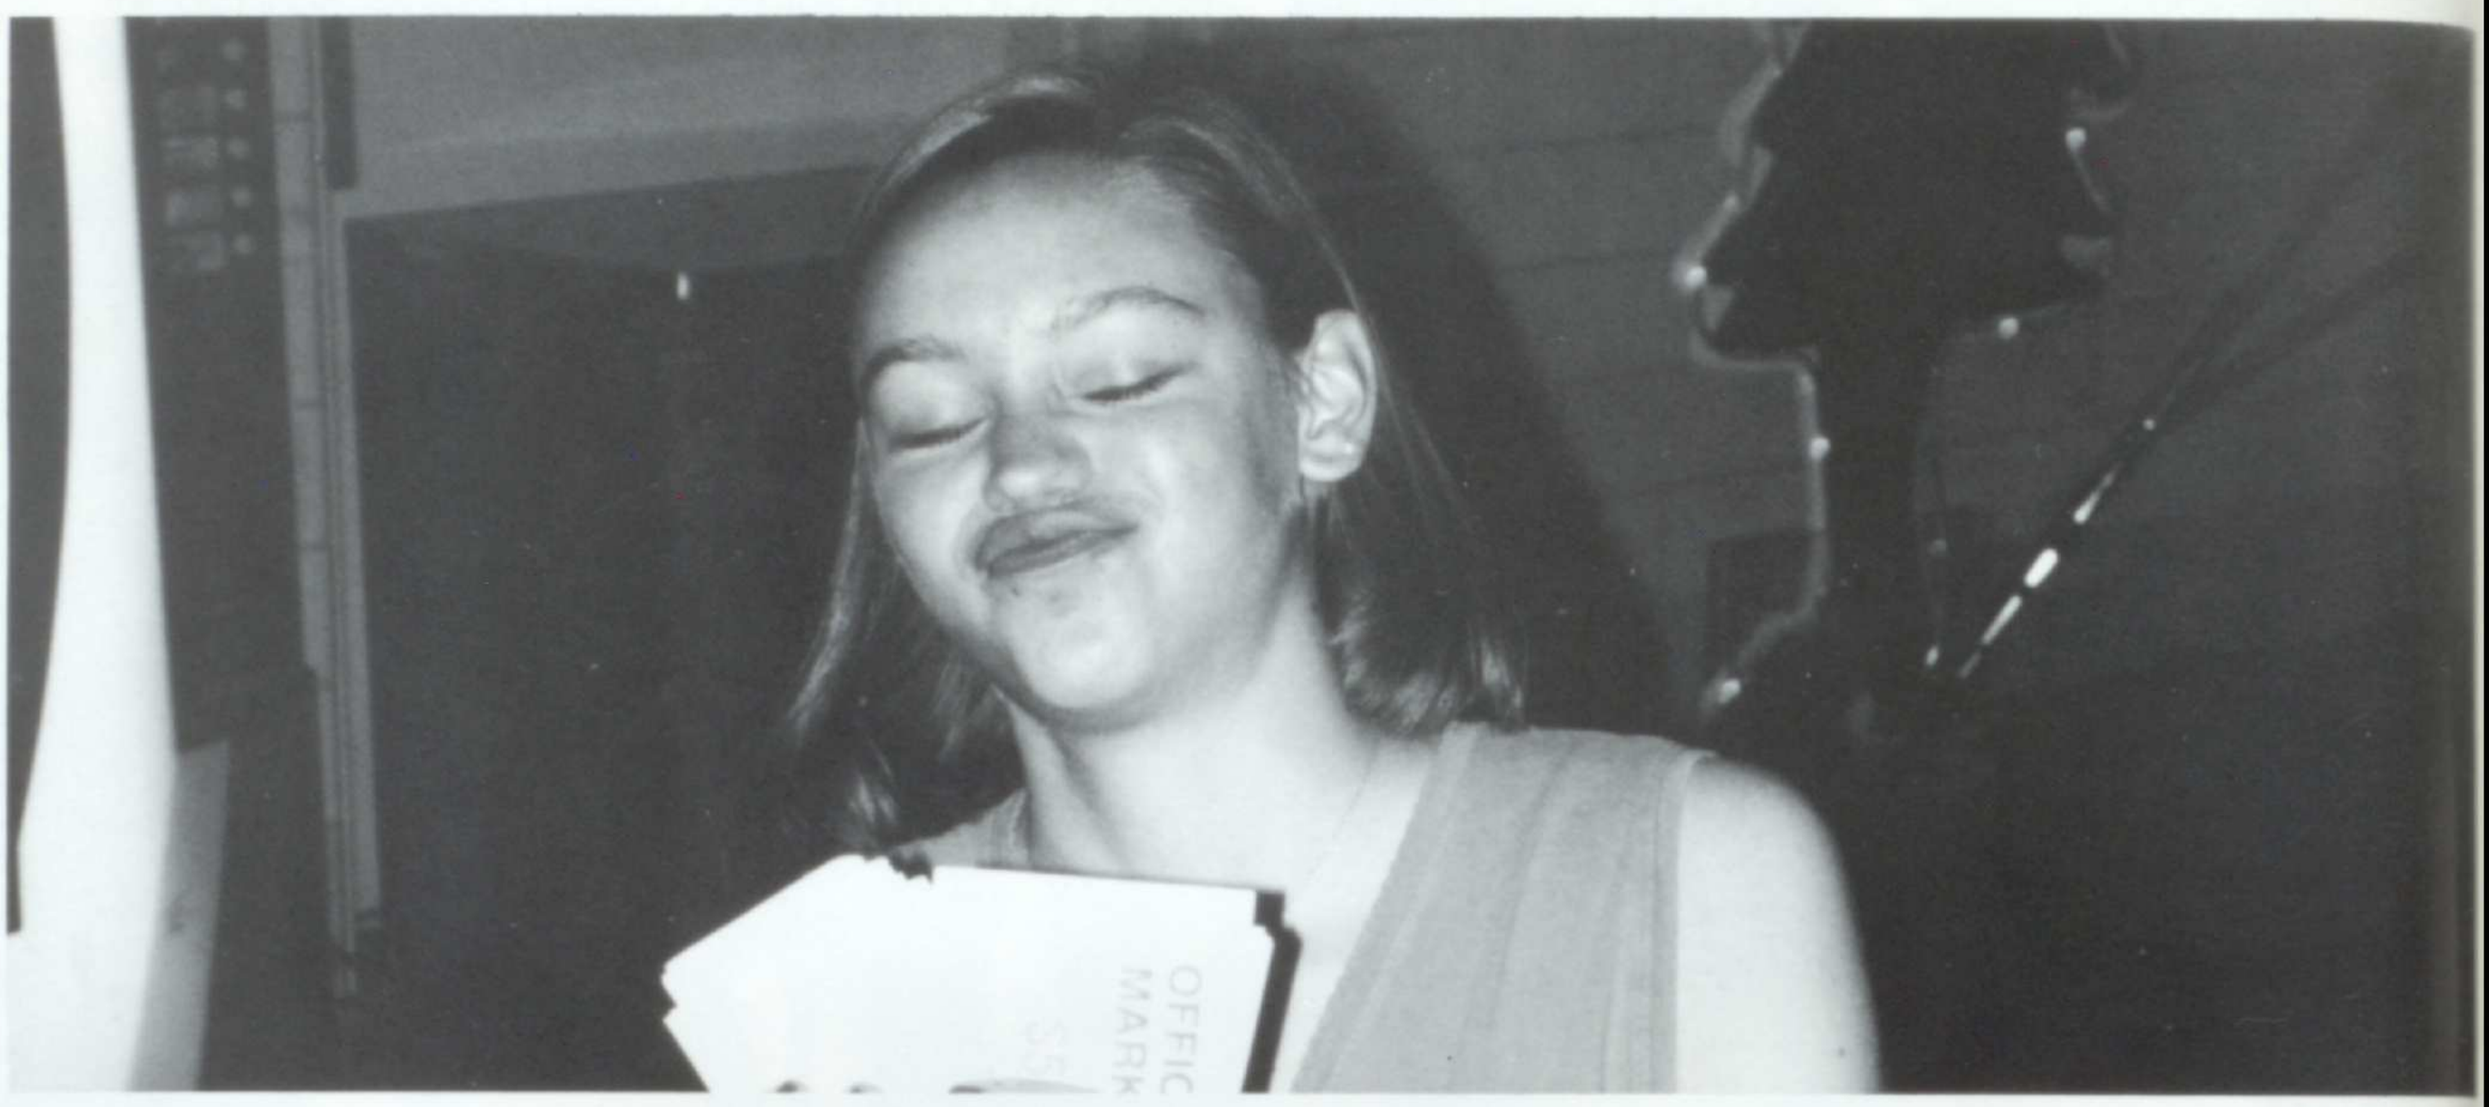
"Ha, Ha, Ha," gloats Trisha Anderson. "I'm going to take all my dough, run off to sunny Mexico and find myself an island to buy." Sorry Trisha, you have to earn your Yale degree and work hard first.



This year's After Graduation party had a different twist to it. As the last class affected by the split of school, the class of '94 was able to enjoy one last bash with classmates, current and old. For one night, the Beightler Amory was changed into a Las Vegas casino. Students were able to try their hand at everything from blackjack to horse racing. Fake money was handed out at the door and could be won and then used to purchase prizes. When everyone left at four in the morning, they remembered a night full of gambling and friendship.

Hello, Dolly!

After a week's postponement, this year's musical, Hello, Dolly, by Michael Stewart, was performed before an enraptured crowd in the Hottenroth Center. The story centers around Mrs. Dolly Gallagher Levi, played by Lauren Clark. Dolly, a widow, grows tired of being the town matchmaker and decides it is time to go on with her own life. Her romantic interest in Horace Vandergelder, played by Ryan Lowery, is accompanied by an interest in spreading his wealth throughout Yonkers. Cornelius, played by Brian Cooper, and Barnaby, played by Marc Donmoyer, run into trouble when they venture off to New York City while leaving Vandergelder's store unattended. The main cast was accompanied by a fabulous chorus of dancing waiters, parade marchers, and singing citizens. Dolly's romantic quests created a delightful adventure that only the TWHS Theatre Department could present in such style and grandeur.

Magic Theatre

Magic Theater, the children's play for the 1993-94 theatre season brought fun and magic to the hearts of Worthington elementary students. The play was performed by two troupes over a two week period. The performers travelled among the various elementary schools to create a magical world of imagination. The play revolves around several skits with each performer playing many different parts. The skits are aimed not only at entertaining but also at teaching. The actors become everything from the bright, yellow sun to scary, creepy monsters in the dark. Children learn how all people are different, and they also learn how to deal with anger. TWHS Theatre Repertory continues to uphold its tradition of creating quality entertainment for young children.

Ben Foust and Scott Pence are not very happy.

The Fantasticks

Below: The two families strike their infamous pose at the end of the first act.

The Thomas Worthington Theater Repertory Program continued its outstanding year with the beloved musical the Fantasticks. This wonderful play, set in a magical world, made both adults and children feel like a fairy tale land can become a reality.

El Gallo, played by David Ayers, showed two naive lovers, a girl and a boy who thought themselves to be fantastic, the harshness of the real world and begged them and the audience not to grow up too quickly. This play taught the lesson of innocence amid heartache, tears, joy, laughter, and anger and fierce words.

This truly was a play of the heart, teaching strong morals from dashing characters, beautiful maidens, two very comedic fathers, and a mute. Through this work of art, the audience learned to be young again and to allow the walls to come down.

The Young and the Fair

The last dramatic play of the season, The Young and the Fair, by N. Richard Nash, featured an assortment of Thomas Worthington's talented young women. The story is set in Brook Valley Academy, a girl's junior college near Boston, just after World War II. Francis Morritt, played by Kerry Gilliam, returns to her former school in need of a job. Francis's father had died recently and she and her younger sister, Patty, were left to fend for themselves. Francis receives a job teaching, and Patty, played by Kelly Eisenman, becomes a student of the school. As a freshman, Patty is terrorized by a senior group known as the "Vig." Meanwhile,the leader of the "Vig," Drucilla Eldridge, played by Lisa Allen, is determined to find out who has been stealing things from girls' dorms. All of these problems create a play suitable to the talents of TWHS actresses.

Lettice and Lovage

Lettice Douffet screams into the tape recorder as Lotte and Bardolph try to turn it off. (below)

The thespians at Thomas Worthington High School continued to impress their audience with this year's production of Lettice and Lovage. This British comedy never ceased to entertain the audience with the incorrigible Lettice Douffet, played by Megan Kelly. She showed the audience that it is always possible to make any situation amusing. Megan showcased her acting skills in this piece with her rich English accent and constant enthusiasm. Lotte, played by Cori Foust, added much to the play. The highlight of the play is the final scene when Lettice and Lotte acted out the final trial and death of the English king Charles I. The title of the play is derived from the main characters first name and an ingredient in the sixteenth century English drink which Lettice fondly calls quaff. The play was extremely entertaining, and it allowed two very talented actresses to demonstrate their acting abilities.

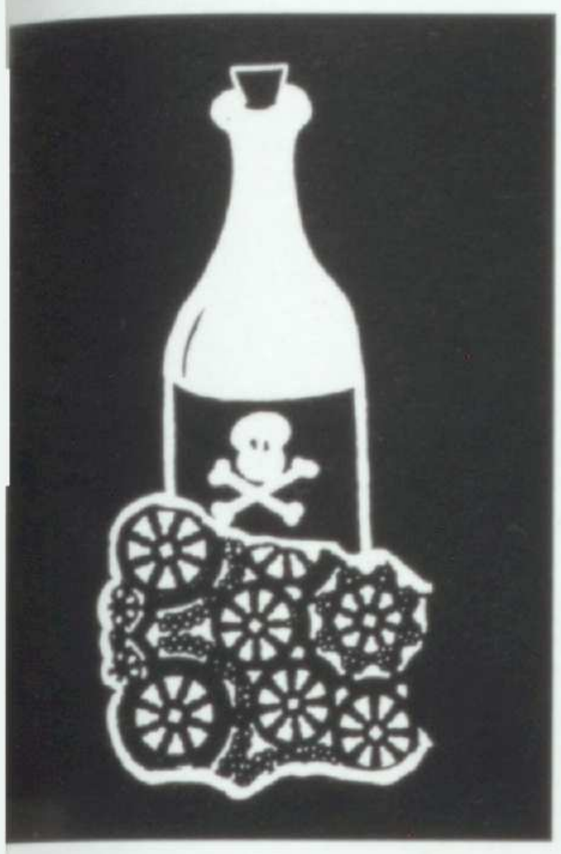
Arsenic and Old Lace



Laurie Cook and Mindy Marks smile innocently after burying another victim in the basement.

The TWHS Theatre Department presented Arsenic and Old Lace by Joseph Kesselring with the usual talented cast and well-constructed set. The story revolves around Abby and Martha Brewster, two sisters who share an unusual pastime. It seems the sisters have a habit of inviting lonely old men into their home and serving them arsenic laced wine, then burying them in the basement. Abbie, played by Laurie Cook, and Martha, played by Mindy Marks, feel they are helping these lonely old people by putting them out of their misery. The sisters never ran into trouble before, but problems arise when their nephew, Mortimer, played by David Ayers, discovers they have been burying people in the basement. The situation becomes worse when Mortimer's long lost sinister brother, Jonathan, played by Ben Paulus, decides to pay a visit. This classic play was produced with the humor and class characteristic of the Theatre Department.

Shooting Stars

The Theater Rep continued its outstanding season with the hilarious comedy about a womens' basketball team in the early 1960's by Molly Newman. The cast entertained the audience throughout the evening, especially during the second act after Tammy, played by Lisa McCulty, found the manager of the womens' basketball team, Cassius, dead in the rest room. Shooting Stars provided many different looks at the team. The characters worked surprisingly well with one another and their clashes of personalities proved to the audience that different types of people can get along. Although the play only covered one night in a locker room, the audience had a brief look into the lives of seven extraordinary women. With Shooting Stars, the Theater Department continued to provide entertainment for students and adults alike.

Luv

Scott Pence just can't figure women out! Brian Cooper vents his frustrations.

Luv, by Murray Schisgal is a hilarious play telling the love story of the three cast members, Scott Pence, Brian Cooper, and Lauren Clark. Scott Pence plays the role of Harry Berlin, a man whose life has gradually become pointless since he graduated from college. Brian Cooper portrays the character of Milt Manville. He was Harry Berlin's roommate in college and seems to be living a perfect life. The third cast member, Lauren Clark, plays Ellen Manville, Milt's beautiful, morally upright wife. The story develops when Harry and Milt run into each other for the first time in several years. Milt has fallen in love with another woman and wants to divorce Ellen. When she will not grant him one, Milt sees the perfect opportunity to play matchmaker by unloading his wife on his good buddy, Harry. Mark up one more success for the TWHS Theatre Department!

A Thurber Carnival

This year, TWHS opened its theater season with A Thurber Carnival. Many actors showcased their talent during this production. The play was taken from various sketches by a former Ohioan and Columbus citizen, James Thurber. These works appeared in the literary magazine, The New Yorker. Beginning with the story of "The Night The Bed Fell," the thespians continued entertaining the audience throughout the remainder of the night.

James Thurber was played by both Scott Pence and Brian Cooper. This amusing character, accompanied by several others, provided an entertaining taste to the works of the late James Thurber. A Thurber Carnival proved to be an amusing opening to the 1993-1994 Theater Repertory season.

Inherit the Wind

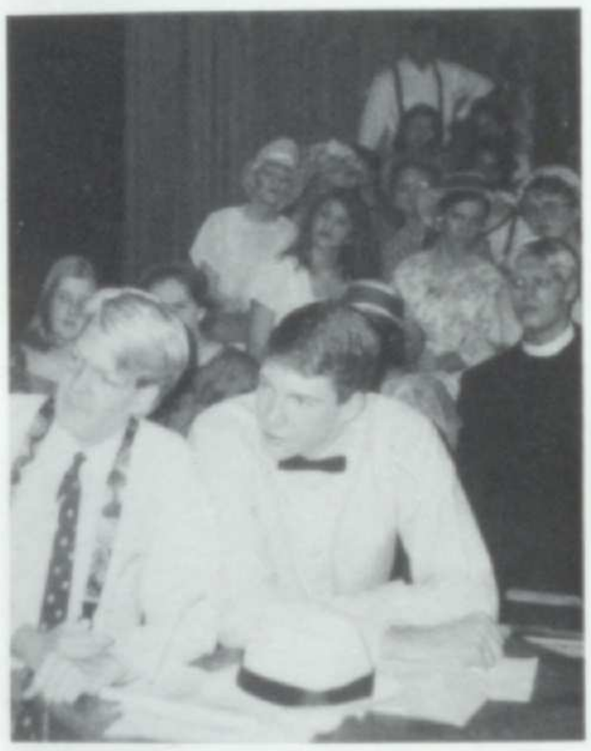
Bryan Shelton and Ryan Lowery discuss the benefits of Hair Club for Men.

Russ Mead and Tim McTigue stare in puzzlement as happy clowns dance across the stage.



Theatre Rep continued its season with the production of Inherit the Wind by Jerome Lawerence and Robert E. Lee. The story is loosely based on the Scopes' Monkey Trial but is not a factual historical account. The plot of the play is centered around the trial of Bertram Cates, a man who had been arrested for teaching the theories of evolution. Teaching the theory was against the law in the small bible belt town where he lived. Russ Mead gave a dynamic performance as Henry Drummond, as did Ryan Lowery as Matthew Harrison Brady. Tim McTigue gave a stellar performance as Bertram Cates, the man on trial. Also, the creative set design and lighting added to the overall effect of the play. The theatre department's second production of the year was a smashing success.

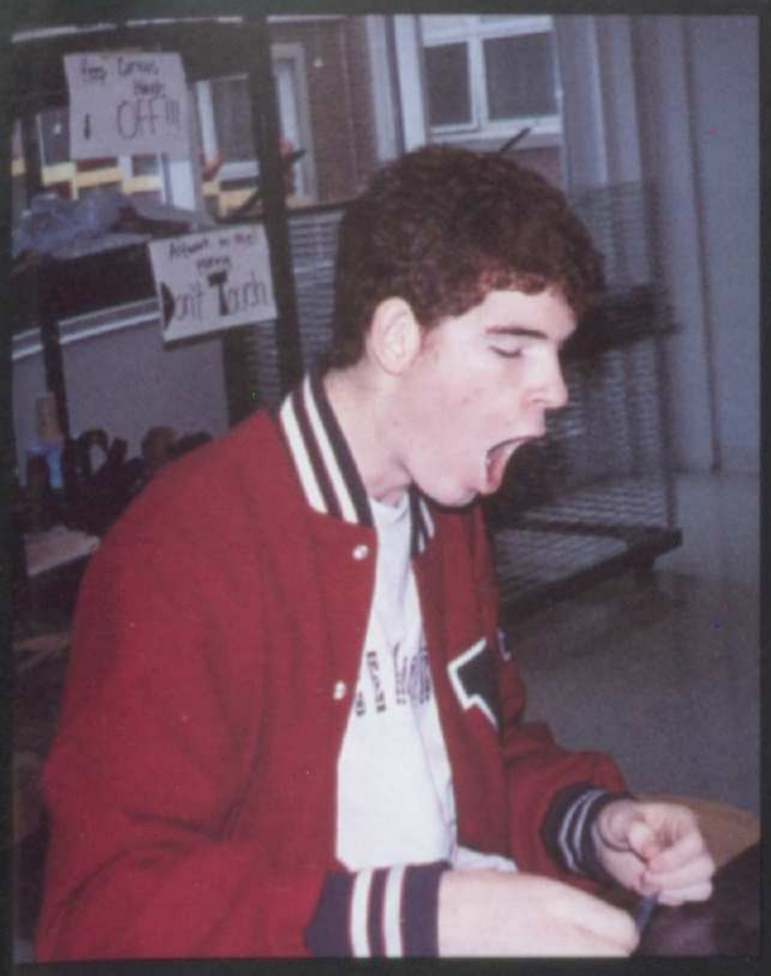
"Watch me suck up everything on this table with my vacuum lips," states Geoff Smith.



"I think I'll ignore the teacher and doodle," says Amy Alwood.

I'll show 'em I'm a tiger, show 'em what I can do," growls Paul Helling.

Katie Gloeckner reacts to the fact that our caferteria food was given an award for the best cuisine in the country.
Center right: Tanushree Sinha, Tricia Anderson, Anne Heath and Anna Lin are pleased that they trained their purple dinosaur to stay in one place at all costs. On the other hand, Amye Tevaarwerk could care less.

Shawn Krysty gives the sure sign that he will, in fact, graduate from Thomas Worthington in June of 1994. Way to go Shawn! We knew you could do it.

"Look, she thinks she's so bad," smirks Heather. Meanwhile, Amy does her famous impersonation of Vanna White.

Below: Angie Hammonds politely smiles for the cameraman, unaware that Shannon Leis is trying to plant a big wet one on Scott Miller.
Center: Look at these kids, braving the wind and cold to come out and support their school

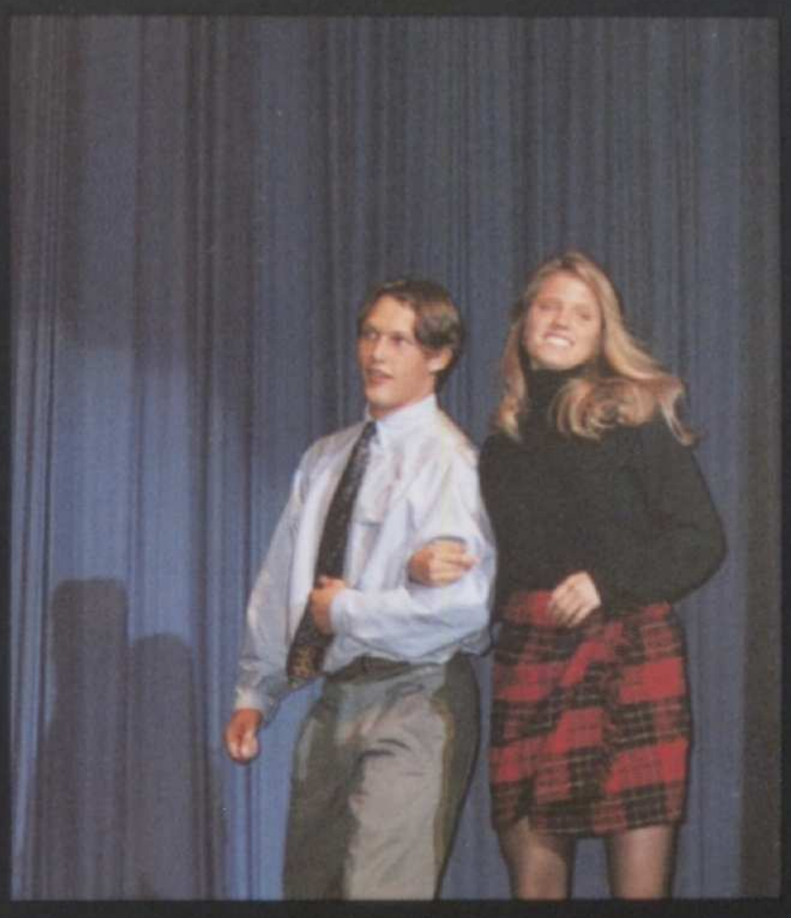
Lower Left: "Don't take a picture of me," groans Nate Milnor, "I didn't eat my Wheaties this morning."

Left: As Stuart Olsen displays his sexiest grin, Ali McCarthy, Drew Schwamburger and Matt Granger only wish they could look that good.

Gosh, this door is too heavy. I can barely push it open," grunts Joel Bingham.

"Come on Alex, we have to walk faster. I have to go the bathroom," says Shawn Krysty.



Helping out our beloved parking attendant, Mr. Hammill, Amy Gutrie directs traffic after school.

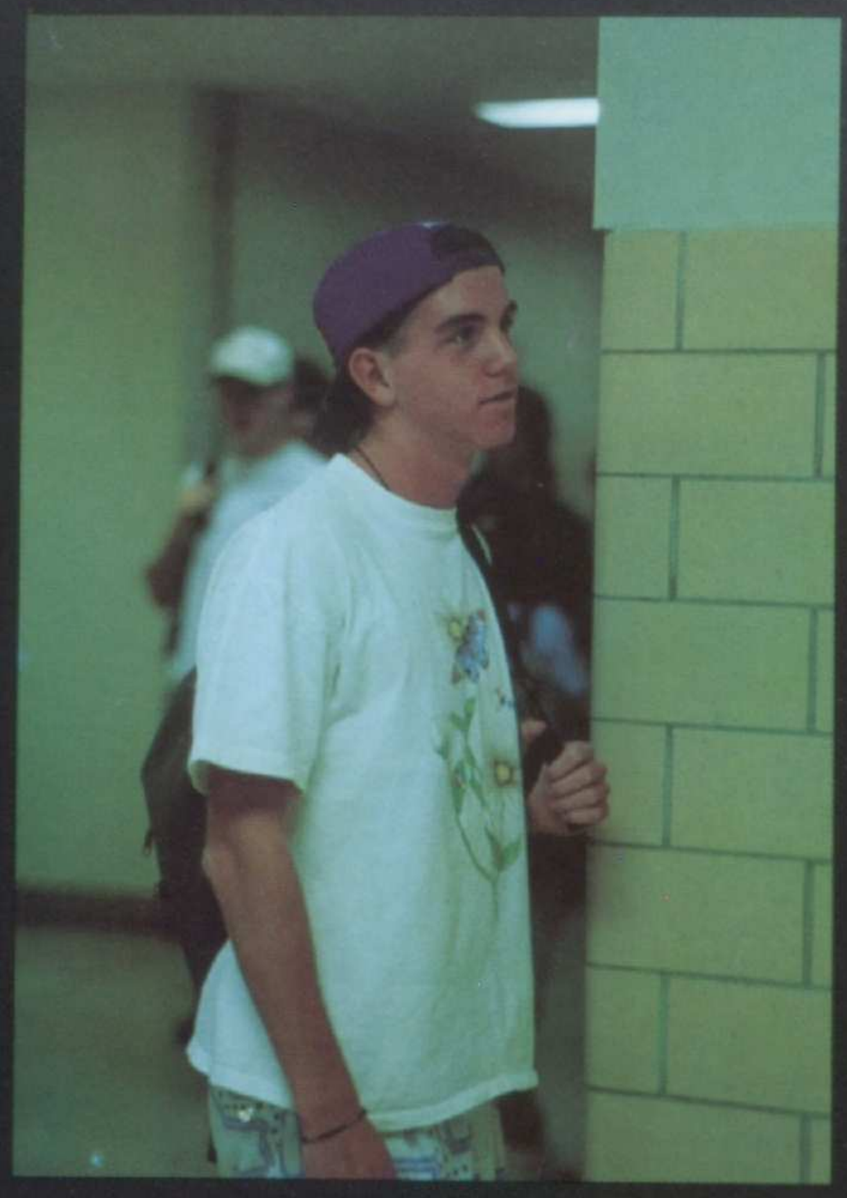
Lower Left: "Hey look at me, I'm cool because I'm on VARSITY," exclaims Todd Camp.

Left: "My aren't we cute," declares the three amigos Rocco Debitetto, Danielle Khoury and Andy McIntyre.

Jeff Gibbons is astonished by all the beautiful women roaming the halls.



These clones are all set for a fun-filled night with pals.

"It takes me only 179 licks to get to the center of a Tootsie Roll pop!"

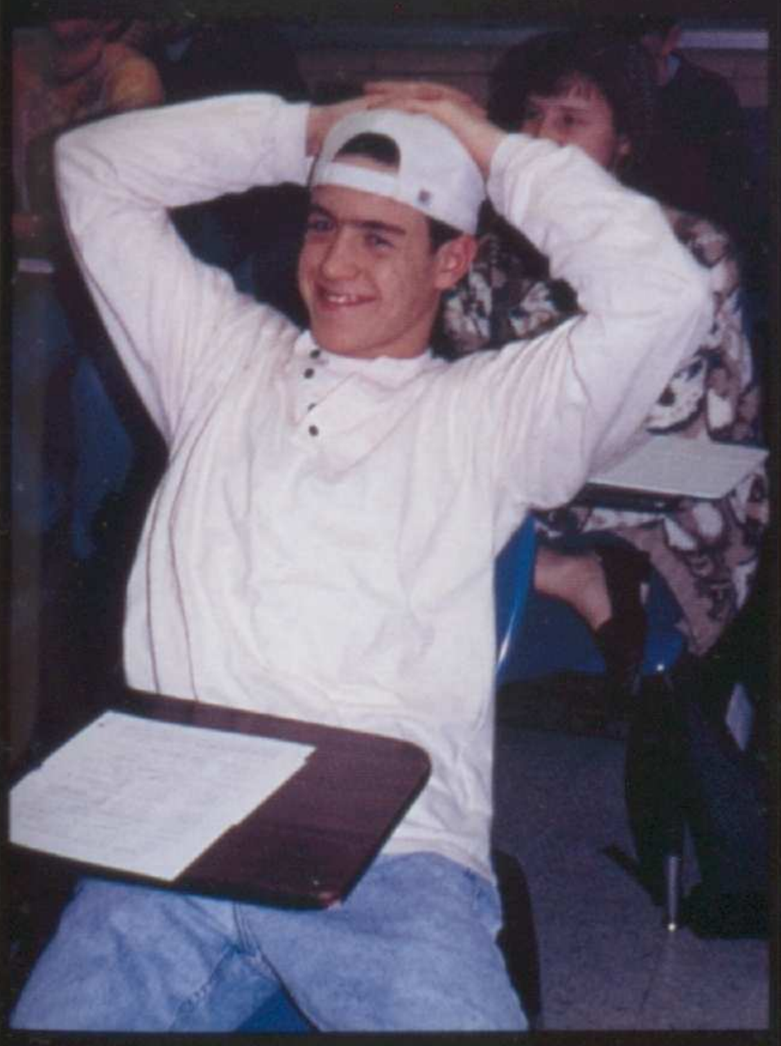
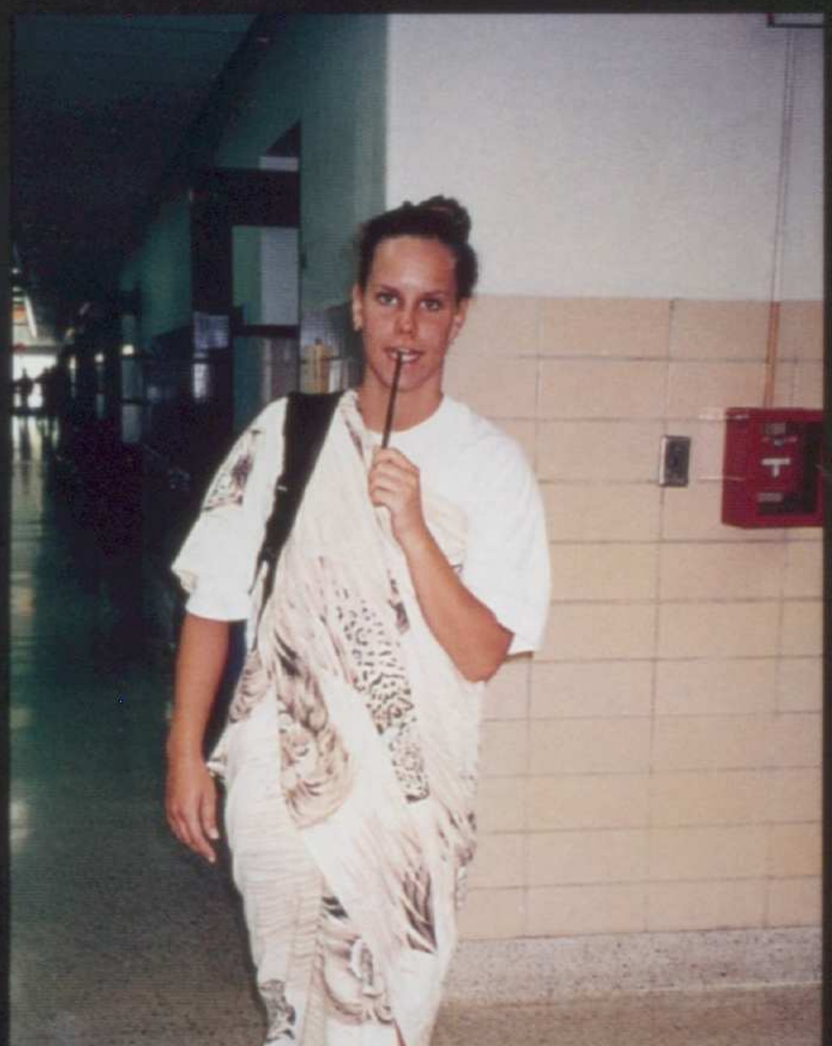
Above: "Bobby , playing cards is not allowed in this institution."
Left: "Come on," says a disgusted Stu Olsen as he escorts Lija Kalnins across the stage.

Will someone please teach Josh Hill the proper toga etiquette?

Superfreak Sudimack's artistic jeanswear seems improper for TWHS.

"Hey baby, what's your sign," remarks Brian Cooper. "Like my tie, sugar?"

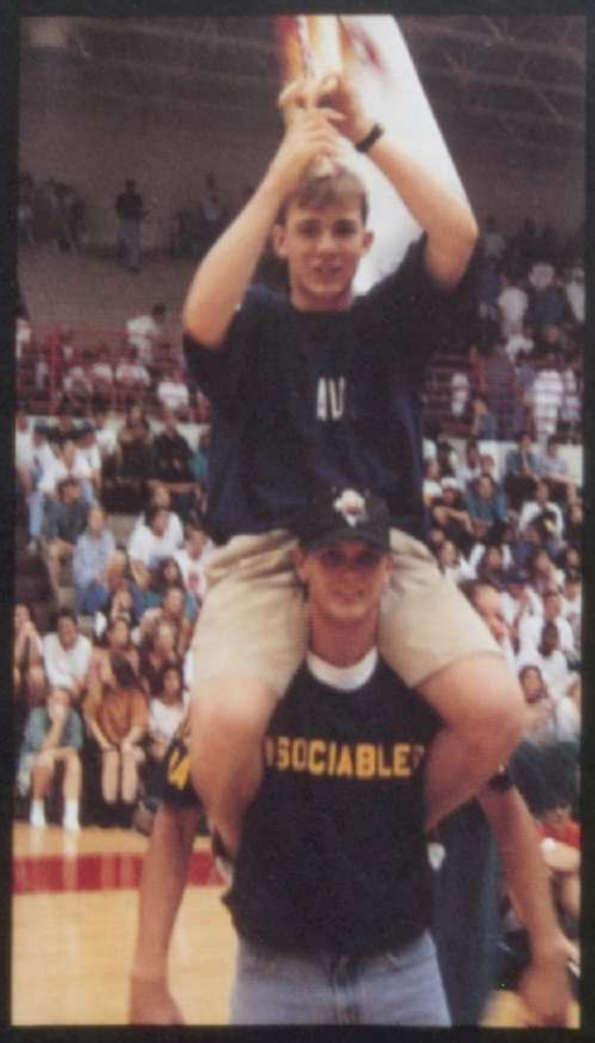




Center left: Look, no wet rings. Darren Reiher is sure to be dry and confident.
Center: "I won't be late for woodworking, I won't be late for woodworking," thinks Yvonne Smith as she rushes to class.
Above: Seen here are Paskorn Jittjumnongk, Bart Lubbers and Jim Irwin doing their best interpretation of see no evil, hear no evil, speak no evil. Nice work boys.

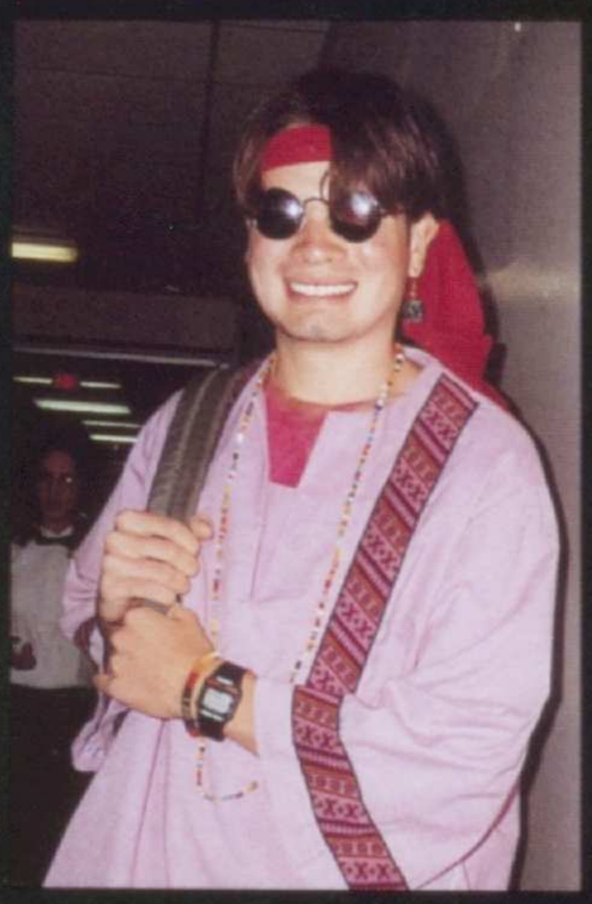
Starving herself for weeks, Marcie Scherr is having strong delusions. She can no longer distinguish between a pen and a candy bar, and she also has a fetish for big jungle cats.

"Giddie-up," says Stu Olson as he digs his spurs into Jake.



Annie Tenwick, Lorena Opitz, Alex Chamberlain, Muffy Carter, Laura Bukovec and Amanda Lowe show the classic group pose.

Can any girl resist this massive hunk of manliness?



"I wanna be just like Drew Scwamburger," thinks Ian Edgerton. Meanwhile Derrick Tibbits is checking out the action below.

Come on Lee, We know every male wants to grow his hair out but this is getting ridiculous!

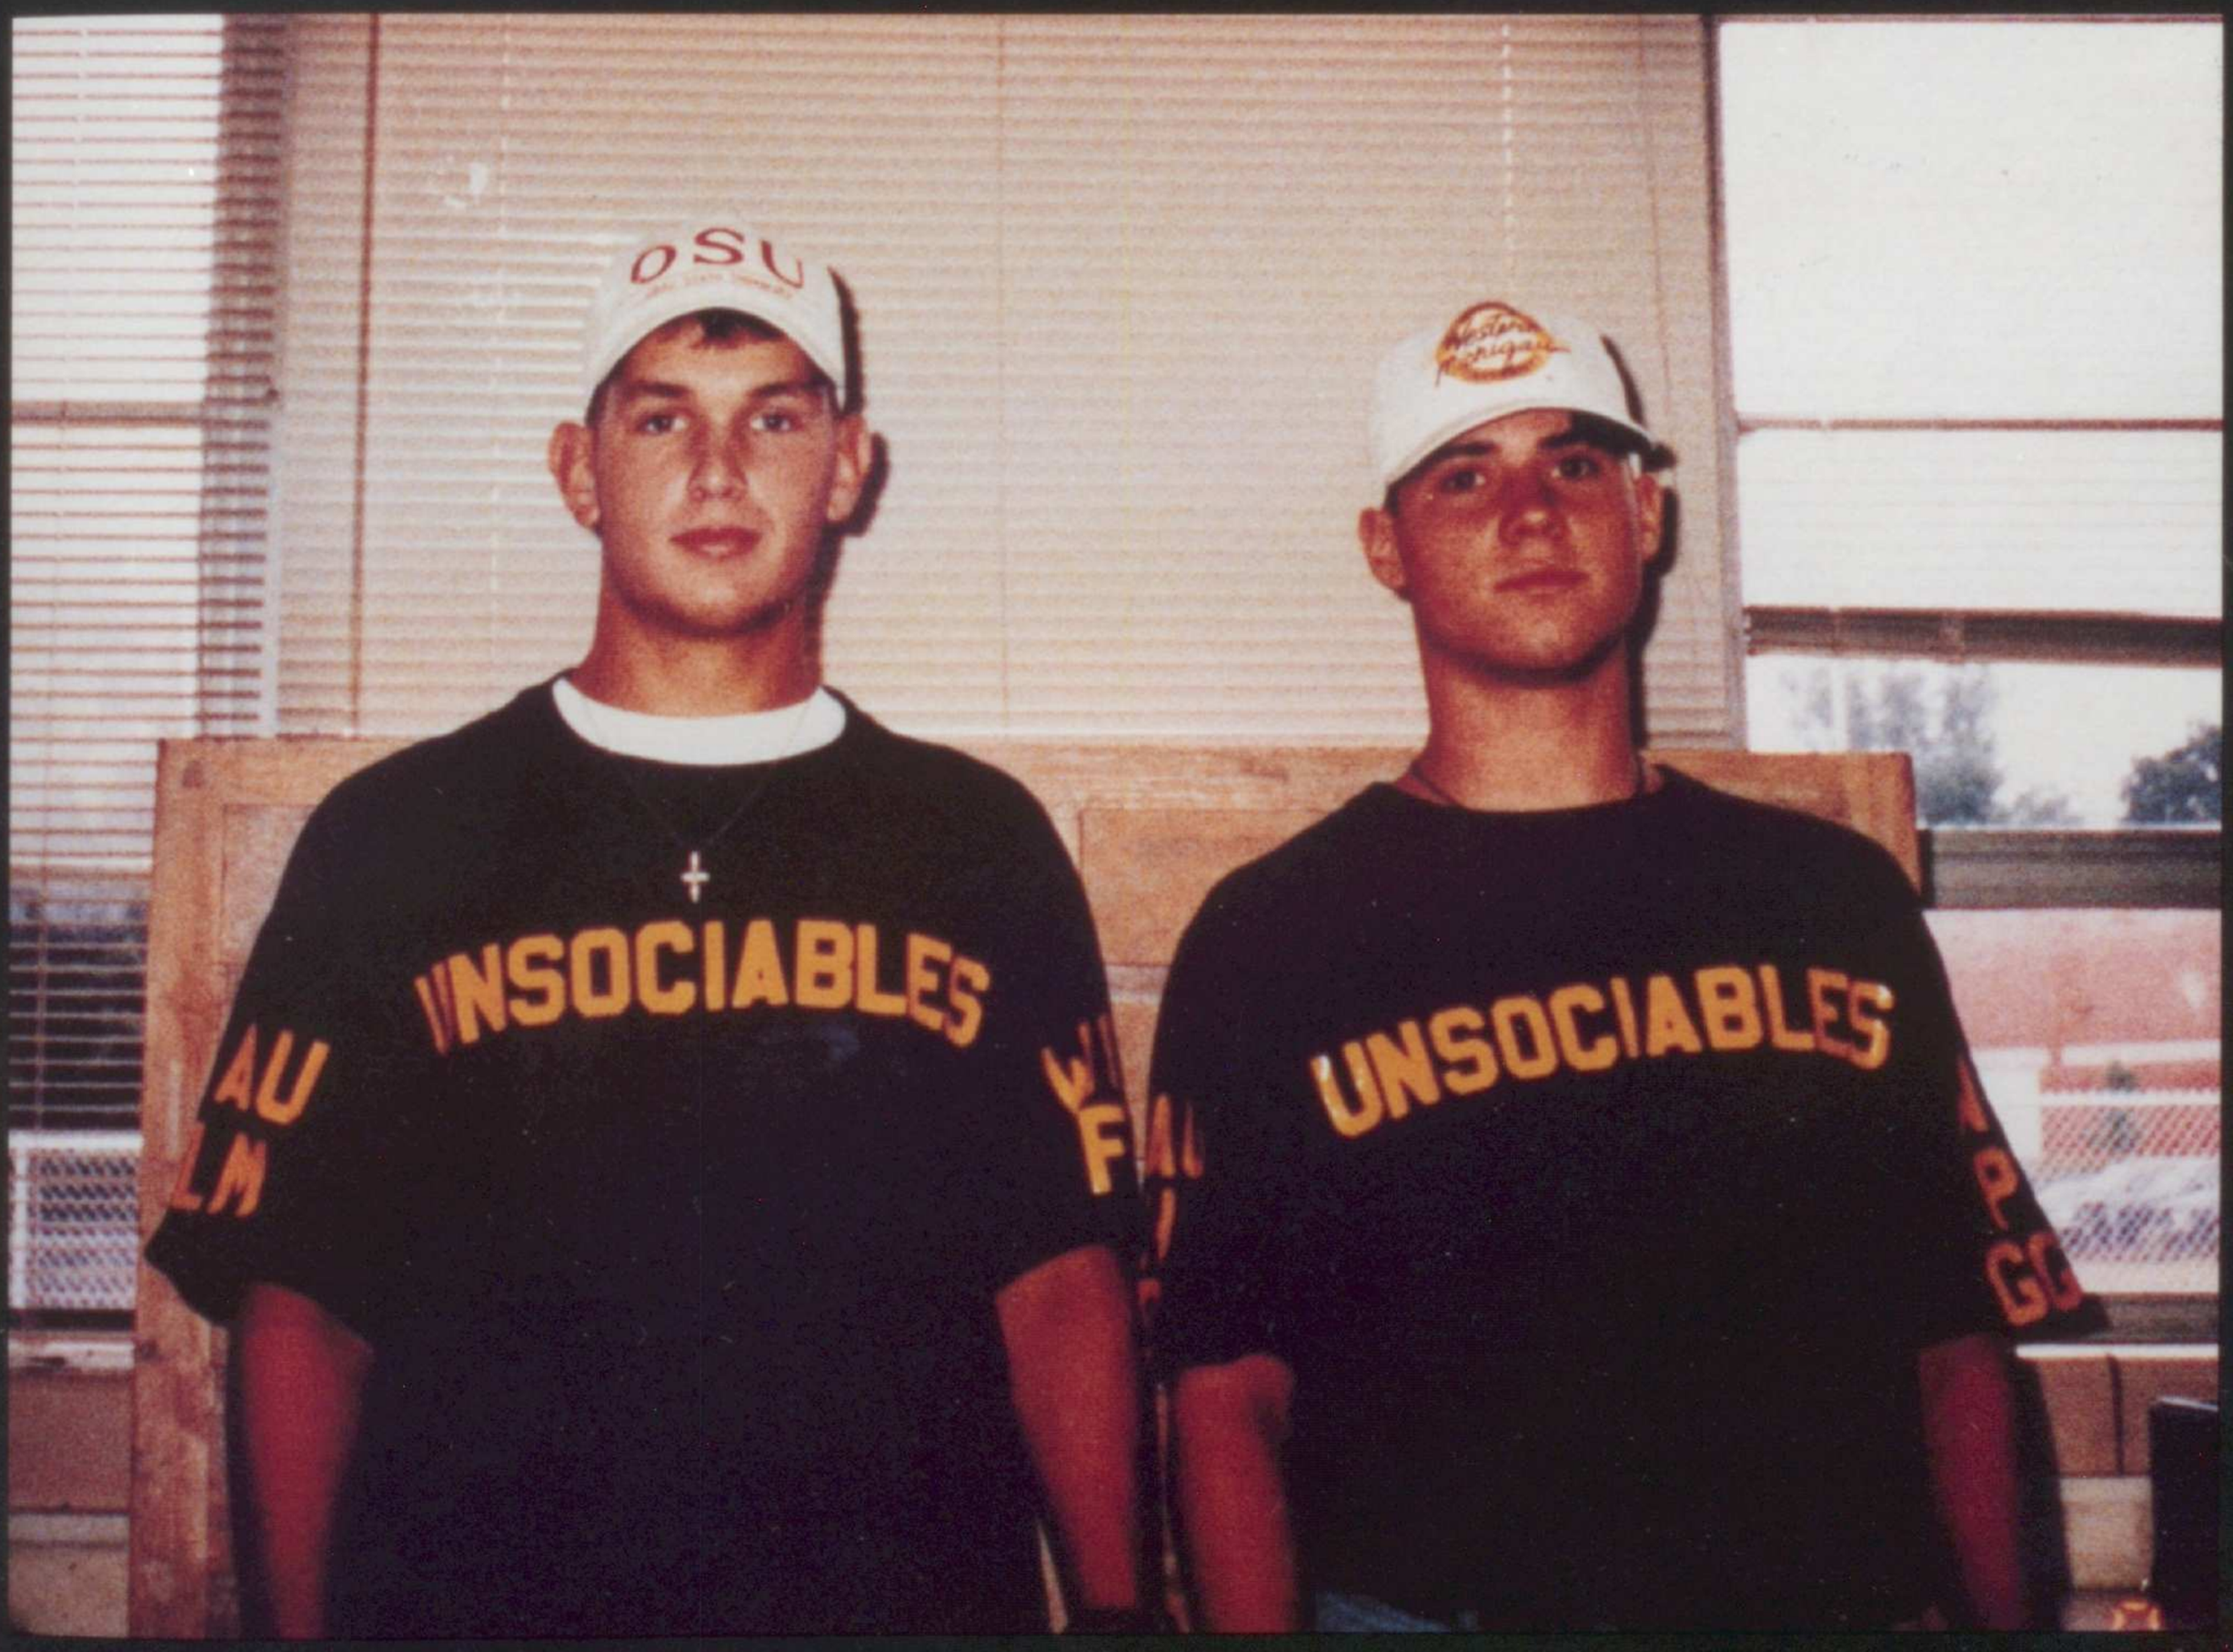
Center: Anne, Jenny, and Janelle all smile and ignore Alex's super-human neck craning abilities.
Above: "Hmm...I wonder why everybody is looking at me. "

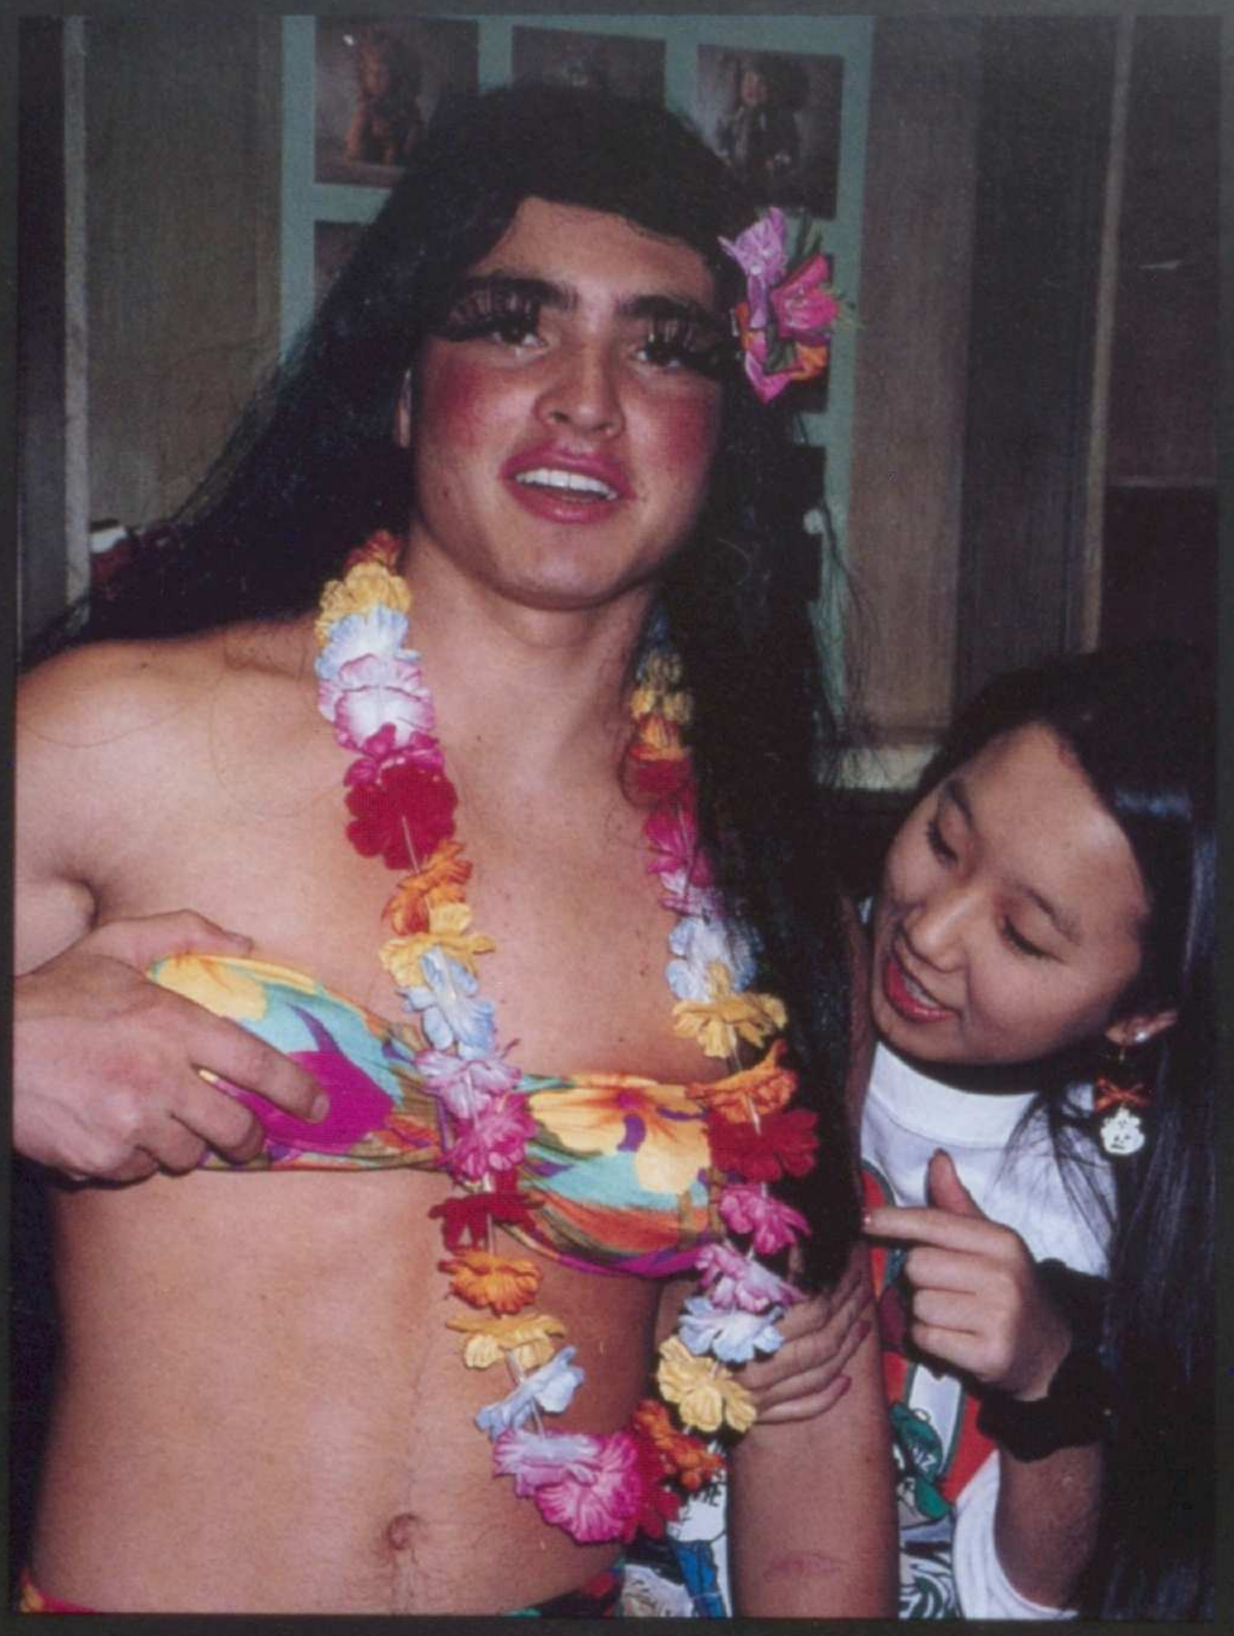
"Don't look at me like that or I'll beat you up using only this candy cane," warns Kyle Pirnat.

"Ben Gelber said it was going to rain, that's why I'm wearing this hood," thinks fashion conscious Sherrie Bossart.



The future is looking bright for UNSOCIABLES, Judd Posey and Nick Voorhees. These two lucky devils have just been informed that they were chosen from a field of thousands to be all-time police line-up decoys. Turn a little to the left, Judd. Perfect.

Andy McGahan demonstrates his own views on the theory of gravity to Marci Johnson.



" If you don't get out of my face I'm going to bludgeon you with this rubber cement wand," warns Travis Hall.

Center Right: Tomohiko Okubu and Kenji Fujiyosho are utterly baffled by the high-tech products being developed today.
Above: Margie Bourgeois, Val Ziegler and Lauren Tyack are so used to Shannon Leis' shenanigans that they completely ignore her silliness.

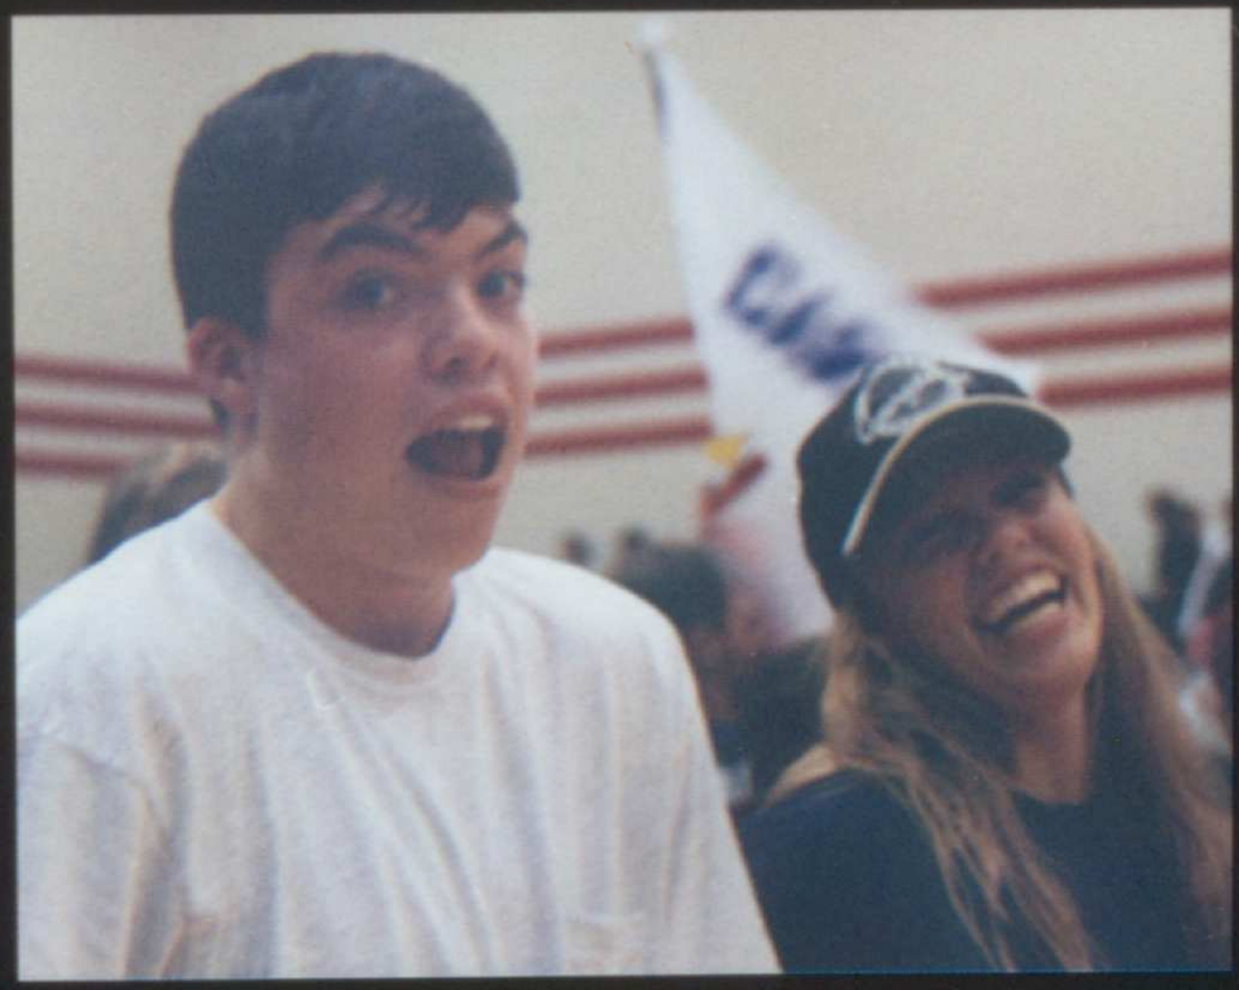
Left: "Are you making fun of my toga? Well, who are you to judge?" exclaims Paskorn Jittjumnongk.

Couldn't you find a better lunch Dave Rieder? Yuck.

Kazi Krouse and Danielle Khoury obviously both use Arrid Extra Dry. Stay fresh girls.

"Rusty , hey man, take it easy on those cow bells boy!"



Upper right: Dancing to a non-existent beat, Lisa McCulty and Laura Bukovec grin and bear their wackiness.
Center Left: Mark Rooker, Kyle Pirnat, Shawn Krysty, and Ben Pesich demonstrate four styles of acceptable spectator clothing.
Left: (We censored this for school purposes.) Shame on you Todd.

Whoa Santa! Take it easy on the egg nog. You're tottering conspicuously.

Sean Clement asks Russ Mead, "Do you think 15 cents is an accurate guess? Are you really worth that much? I'd say 10 or less."

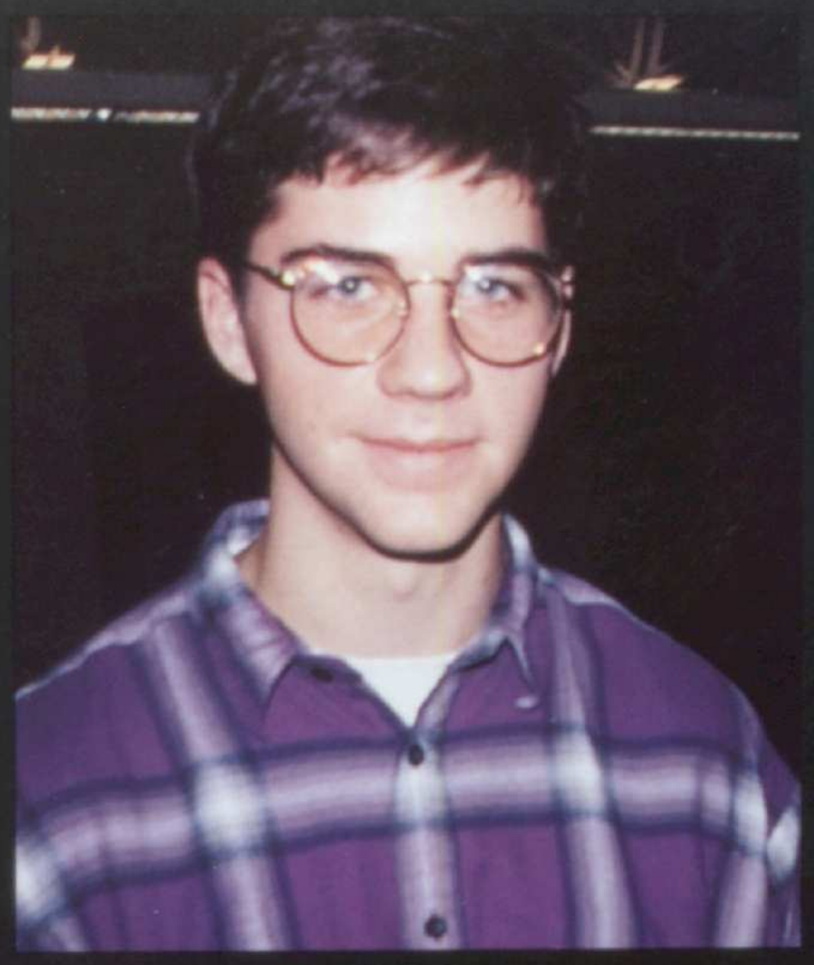
Top: Meet Brooke and Katie, TWHS finalists in the widest smile contest.
Above: "Yummy, this peppermint is so tasty. Can anybody find me some more?"

"Does it look like I use Pantene? It's really Suave," ponders Leslie Copp.

"Oh boy, I hope this picture goes into the yearbook," thinks Ward Meier.



Dave Hunt displays his wannabe macho look and wonders, "Is it manly enough?"

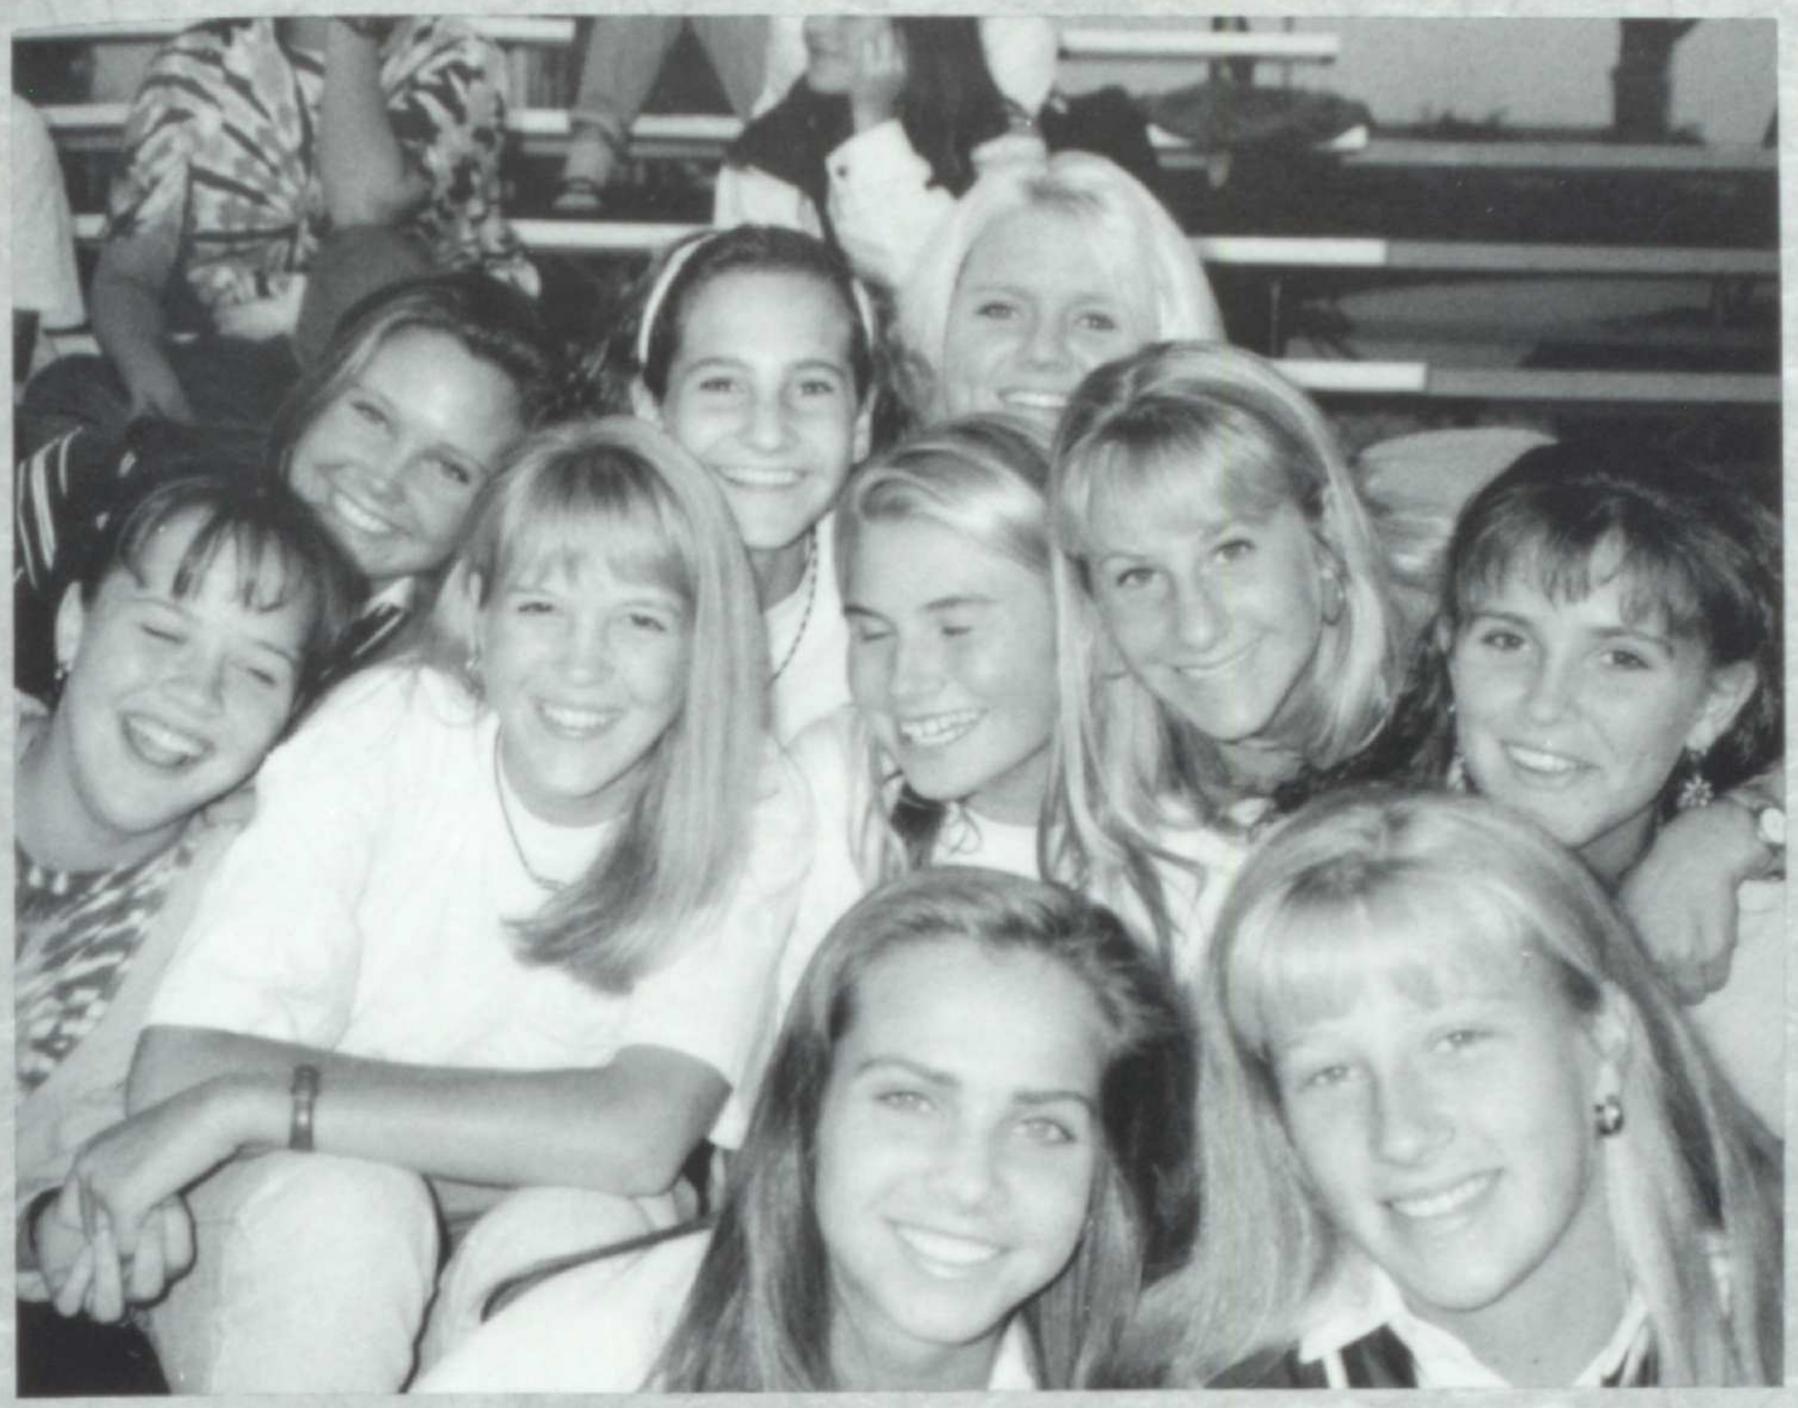
UNDERCLASS

While Rene Farell, Susi Lee, Tracy Shortridge and Jenny Lambert are busy flashing their best smiles to the camera, Janet Schols is scoping out the cute guy she sees in the corner.



Crowded around the infamous Laura Bukovec, this group of junior girls can't help but show their excitement for being able to share the bleachers with an actual senior.

"Hey Katie," says Andy Klaussenmeyer. "Maybe if we flash our best smiles we'll get our picture in the yearbook!"

Junior Phil Hickman made his appearance at this years "Autumn Festival" dressed up as a one-eyed psuedoflasher.

'97 FRESHMEN '97

Freshmen Kate Parmer has a lot to learn. She thinks she is shadowing senior Ian Lloyd, but little does she know how shadowing really works.

Freshman Shadowing Day

On April 6, 1994 the halls of Thomas Worthington High School were quite empty because of the fact that there were hardly any freshmen in the whole school. They were gone for an entire day for their shadowing experience. Freshman shadowing day enables them to see what it is like to have a job. They are able to pick the line of work they enjoy and any person they would like to shadow, with the exception of their own parents. They spend the entire day with that person at his or her work to see what a typical day in their profession entails. This allows them to see which things they like and dislike about the job in order to make a more informed decision about their future. I asked a few freshmen what they thought of their shadowing experience and here is what they said. Kate Parmer replied, "I liked shadowing day, but I think that we should get to shadow for three days to experience more jobs". Tony Agin said, "I liked shadowing day. I learned a lot about the job I am interested in and I hope future freshmen get the same opportunity". Others commented by saying, "I liked it only because it got me out of school. Other than that, it was okay," said Molly Ball. Overall, the day was a great experience for everyone.

A Dedicated Sophomore Class

At Thomas Worthington High School, the class officers play an important role in the students' lives. The officers are elected to represent their grade and carry out the students' ideas and requests. The sophomore class officers included: President Naomi Freeman, Vice-President Dave Rankey, Secretary Mikki Westbrook and Treasurer Roseanne Alastra.

Officers had the important task of organizing fundraisers to raise money for school events, in particular Prom. The sophomore class officers also had the responsibility of running the class meetings. When asked about her expectations for the year, President Naomi Freeman responded with a positive outlook. Naomi hoped that her grade would raise about $5,000 for Prom. Naomi also hoped to "get her class more involved in spirit and unity".

The tenth grade began the year with a positive start. The class officers first sold pom-poms and then followed the sucesss of the pom-pom sale with several bake sales. In Februrary the sophomore class helped the senior class with the annual Valentine's Dance. In addition to helping the senor class with the dance, the sophomores planned a basketball tournament and a dunking contest. In the spring the tenth grade officers sponsored a Spring Dance which featured two bands. This fundraiser helped to boost the sophomore class treasurery.

The underclass and their officers worked hard to make the class of 1996 a memorable one. Lastly and most importantly, the tenth grade class officers helped to produce an unforgettable sophomore year for the class of 1996.

Senior Shirts Next Year?

As the class of '95 approaches the conclusion of their junior year, they begin to dream of next year and the traditions that await them. These include senior parking, open lunch, and senior shirts. The shirts, a topic of great controversy, are bound to continue next year.

Obviously, many mixed feelings run through the student body. A great deal of people support the shirts, but the opposition is rather strong too. Actually several students, especially seniors, have changed their opinion. Rachel Freeman's thought, "Before I became a senior, I thought they were cool, and I always wanted one. Now, I think they're dumb. I don't like half of my senior shirt group." seemed to be the consensus of many seniors questioned. The yearbook staff wondered how the juniors felt about the issue. The following is a poll of sixty-one random juniors. A group of seniors were also asked a question to compare with some of the junior's answers.

1. Should senior shirts continue next year?
   YES: 84%
   NO: 7%
   UNDECIDED: 1%
   DON'T CARE: 8%

2. Do you plan on participating in a group next year?
   YES: 87%
   NO: 6.5%
   UNDECIDED: 6.5%

3. Are they too cliquy?
   YES: 46%
   NO: 36%
   UNDECIDED: 8%

4. Is the class of '95 mature enough to handle senior shirts?
   YES: 66%
   NO: 26%
   UNDECIDED: 8%

5. Do you feel that everyone in your senior shirt group will still be friends at the end of next year?
   YES: 75%
   NO: 15%
   MAYBE: 10%

SENIORS

6. If you could do your senior shirt group over again, would the same people be in it?
   YES: 44%
   NO: 56%

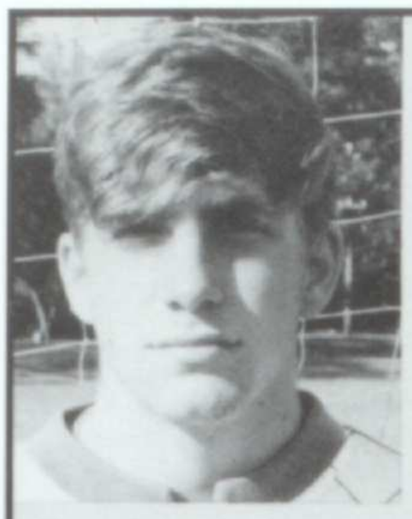
Boys' Soccer

This year the boys' varsity soccer team carried out the winning tradition set by previous teams, even though they played half of their season without their coach, Ian Hamilton, who was sidelined by the O.C.C. Led by senior captian Greg Giessler, and junior captians Sean Barnes and Mike Zenisek, the team compiled an impressive 17-3-2 record.

This year the team made it to state semi-finals. Coach Hamilton said it best, "If you would have told these kids at the beginning of the season that they would make it to the state semi-finals, they wouldn't have believed it. Credit to the kids." Although the team was disappointed that they did not make States, big wins were accumulated by beating St. Charles twice, once in season and once in the tournament. They also took revenge from last year's loss to South in the Regional Finals by beating them this year in the Regional Finals.



"The team overcame a lot o adversity and proved to many people that we were one of the best teams in the state."

Captain-Greg Giessler

Along with the team accomplishment of being O.C.C. runners-up, many individual awards were received. First Team O.C.C. was awarded to Greg Giessler, and Jim Welch; Second Team O.C.C. was awarded to Sean Barnes, Joel Bingham, Tomo Okubo, and Mike Zenisek; Second Team All District was awarded to Sean Barnes; and Third Team District was awarded to Jim Welch.

Girls' Soccer

After coming off a shaky season, the girls' varsity soccer team was hoping for a strong year. With fifteen returning lettermen, the team was not short on experience or talent. However, talent and experience was not enough to fullfill the goals set at the beginning of the season. Even though their goals were not met, excitement was still in the air. Through all the pain, sweat and frustration a strong 6-7-3 record was established.

Last year the Lady Cards were cast out of the State Tournament by Watterson. Seeking their revenge the team stomped the Eagles 2-0 in the regular season, ending the four year losing streak to Watterson. Despite beating the Eagles, the Cards did have their share of ups and downs. Injuries played a large role throughout the year. Luckily filling in for the injured was not a problem as players from all grades were called up to play, and a bond of closeness was established between them. As always the friendships made will never be forgotten.

"This was a frustrating year, but I think that the friendships which developed made the season worthwhile"

Football

The '93 Cardinal Football Team entered this year with high expectations to build on the school's first O.C.C. championship in many years. Unfortunately, due to many injuries, including the loss of two captains, the Cards finished with a disappointing 3-7 record. Beneath the frustration, however, there were signs of positive achievement.

After the Cards dropped their first three games to Watterson , Westerville North, and Newark, they rebounded with an impressive win against Mifflin, 40-6. The Cards earned their first O.C.C. victory in a close, exciting game at Groveport where they came out on top, 14-12. The team ended its season with an impressive, come from behind victory over O.C.C. rival Westerville South.

"It was a hard season, but we stayed together as a team, and no one ever gave up."

Captain-Derek Tibbits

Filling the shoes of Ohio State bound Dimitrious Stanley was a worry for many a Cardinal fan after the end of last year. Junior Quentin Cradle more than replaced Stanley as the Card's go to guy, scoring an incredible 16 touchdowns and accumulating over 2,000 total yards. This miraculous performance earned him 1st team All O.C.C. honors. Senior Matt Heiss also was awarded 1st team O.C.C. Drew Schwamburger, Todd Babione, Rashidi Hodari, and Ryan Wilkins all earned 2nd team O.C.C., while sophomore Gary Berry received Honorable Mention.

By Alison Offenburger and Billy Lawhon

Golf

The 1993 Thomas Worthington Cardinal Golf Team turned in a successful campaign this fall. The team finished with an overall record of 119-16, which also included a share of the O.C.C. title. This superb effort included finishes of 2nd at the Explorer Tournament, 3rd at the Findlay Tournament, and 3rd at the Golden Bear Invitational at Muirfield. In post-season play, the Cards began with an impressive second place finish at the sectional tournament which qualified them for Districts at Apple Valley, where the Cards suffered through some tough rounds and fell just short of qualifying for States. Only one Cardinal, Chris Maher, was able to advance to the state tournament. Junior Ryan Norder commented, "We had a very successful year, but I'm disappointed we didn't make it to States. But with only losing two seniors, we will have a strong team next year." Junior Steve Lee, who played in the first spot most of the year, won the O.C.C. medal which signifies the top golfer in the O.C.C. Norder earned 1st team All-O.C.C. honors and junior Adam Milliken qualified for Honorable Mention. Maher earned 2nd team honors and summed the season up by saying, "When it came down to it our lack of experience hurt us, but overall we had a positive season. I think that this program will do great things in years to come."

By Billy Lawhon

Girls' Cross Country

In past years, the girls' cross country team has never had any trouble pulling in the wins. With the guidance of O.C.C. and District Coach of the Year, Gary Smith, this year was no exception to past traditions. Every year when the team loses runners to graduation, a new line of girls are waiting to fill their shoes. Returning runners this year had the strength and depth to do just that. This year, co-captains Darby McVicker and Claire McKee stepped into head roles to lead the team to yet another successful season.

After going undefeated in their dual meets and winning four invitationals, the Lady Cards went on to become the O.C.C. and District champs. As the state meet approached, the Cardinals had high hopes. They all went in with great determination and came out with a great 12th place finish.

The depth on the team was obvious when many individuals were also awarded for their efforts. After setting a new school and course record of 17:40, Alyson Butterfield was on the All-O.C.C., District, Regional and State teams. Along with receiving those awards, she was an individual champion at O.C.C.'s and Districts, and was named the Central District Runner of the Year. Many others also received awards. Joanna Finch, Sarah Lopienski, and Darby McVicker were each awarded All-O.C.C. and District honors. Erika Warkentien and Claire McKee All-O.C.C. second team, and Megan Browning All-O.C.C. Honorable Mention.

The lady runners enjoyed a great season with many outstanding successes. Extra-ordinary talent will be back next year to keep up the tradition of this winning team.

By Christi Nigh

"We couldn't have hoped for a more successful season. We ran our best and it was well worth it in the end."

Claire McKee

"We did an outstanding job while having a lot of fun. I was very, very proud of the team."

Darby McVicker

Gasping for that extra breath of air, Claire McKee strides to the finish line.

The girls' cross country team proudly displays yet another winning trophy.

The Tradition Continues

Is Darby McVicker elbowing her opponent? I guess she showed her who is in charge.

Boys' Cross Country

The Boys' Cross Country team finished a successful season this year led by senior co-captains Nilesh Shah and Dave Plouffe. Hoping to make it to the state meet again this year, they unfortunately missed the fourth place cut off but did well at the regionals.

The Cards, with great contributions from talented underclassmen Dave Rankey and David Browne, along with seniors Dave Plouffe, Ward Meier, Jeff Gibbons, and Nilesh Shah, finished the season fourth in the O.C.C. and fifth in the district. The team then went on to finish thirteenth in the Regional Championship. Senior Ward Meier stated, "It was a rewarding season for most of the runners on the team, especially making it to regionals."

"Despite the disappointments we still had a record breaking year."

Captain Dave Plouffe

At the conclusion of the season, individual awards went out to many of the athletes. Nilesh Shah was named O.C.C. Scholar Athlete and also received O.C.C. honorable mention. Also receiving O.C.C. honorable mention was senior Jeff Gibbons. Dave Ranke was named O.C.C. Second Team, and David Browne was named All O.C.C. and All District.

By Meredith Mehlman

With his hair blowing in the breeze, Matt Mielke pushes on toward the finish line.

Running as a team, Dave Rankey, David Browne, Nilesh Shah and Craig Fortner set the pace for the race. Hopefully someone wi tell Nilesh and Dave that it would be much easier to run with their eyes open.

Girls' Field Hockey

The 1993 Field Hockey team had all the makings that a successful team needs. The dedication, spirit, and skills were all there. Although the record may not show it, this was one of the best seasons the team has seen in Kim Willis's six years as head coach.

Due to all the hard work and time they put in, the girls showed tremendous improvement over the course of the year. Perhaps this is the reason they went out and beat teams they have not beaten in years. However, all great things have to end sometime. After battling it out against Hartley, and winning in the fourth overtime, the Cards season finally came to an end at the District Semi-Finals. A grueling match against Columbus Academy resulted in the final loss for the Cards. Led by senior tri-captains Christi Nigh, Ravina Mulchandani, and Liz Betts, the team ended the season with a 6-8-2 record.

"I think we could have gone a lot farther than we did, but all in all, I think it was a great season."

Captain Christi Nigh

The team this year was a team made up of all solid players rather than one or two standouts. This was evident when the team voted on four people for MVP, Liz Betts, Ravina Mulchandani, Sarah McElwee, and Christi Nigh. The hard work all throughout the season paid off, and several members received awards for their efforts. Seniors Christi Nigh and Ravina Mulchandani received First Team all-District, while Sarah McElwee, Carrie Goodman, and goalie Kate Cushman were given Honorable-Mention all-League. Christi Nigh also received All-Ohio honors.

Girls' Tennis

Much to Head Coach Sandy Ferris's prediction, the Lady Cards tennis team pulled out a wonderful season this year. Their record, however, does not show how good the team really was. Not only did they play the usual league teams, but also played some tougher teams outside the league. Led by senior tri-captains Valerie Ziegler, Jenny Spratt, and Patty Cassady, the Cards ended up third in the O.C.C. with a league record of 4-1, and an overall record of 6-11.

Even through the tougher times, the girls continued to show great enthusiasm and spirit. With their dedication and supportive attitudes, they were able to make the season a great triumph.

"It was the best season I've ever had. Thanks for making it so much fun."

-Co-captain Jenny Spratt

After showing just how successful they were on the court, several of the girls received All-League awards. Heather Wheaton and Kavita Phatak received first team, third and second court respectively. Along with them, Leigh Cavanaugh earned Honorable Mention, and Valerie Ziegler was named the O.C.C. Scholar Athlete.

Girls' Volleyball

The Cardinal Girls' Volleyball team had a tough season this year against some very competitive teams. Led by captains Betsy Ryan and Lara Lebeiko, the Cards finished the season 3-17. Although the record might not show it, the Cardinals improved greatly from last year. Senior Claire Schneider stated, "Our skills were good but we lacked consistency."

The Cardinals played with a young team this year. The majority of the players this year were juniors and sophomores with Claire Schneider, Lara Lebeiko, and Gretchen Alden as the only seniors.

Despite the problems that the Cards experienced, they finished the season on a good note with three players receiving OCC recognition. Sarah Gutin was named Second Team All-OCC, Vanessa O'Leary received Honorable Mention, and Claire Schneider was named OCC Scholar Athlete.

As for team awards, Sarah Gutin received Most Valuable Offensive Player and Vanessa O'Leary received Most Valuable Defensive Player. The Most Improved Award was given to Gretchen Alden, and the Spirit Award went to Lara Lebeiko. Coaches awards were given to Amy Murphy and Claire Schneider.

Boys' Swimming & Diving

Leading the '93-'94 boys' swimming and diving teams were captains Aaron Davis, John Stanley and Rob Off. The team was comprised of a wide array of age groups from freshmen to seniors. These tough upcoming swimmers had to replace the eight seniors that were lost last year to graduation. This meant that many team members had to step up their swimming ability to the top level of competition. Although the team did not place in Districts or States, the over-all record was almost unblemished.

As captain Aaron Davis stated, "We really pulled together as a team." Members of the swimming and diving squads work individually to better themselves, but they comprise their scores as a whole during the meets. This year's team recorded an over-all record of 9-1-0, with its only loss to rival Upper Arlington. Rory McVey was the lone swimmer to place at States. He placed 3rd in the 100 backstroke.

Girls' Swimming & Diving

The 1993-94 Cardinal Girls' Swimming and Diving Team finished its season with an overall record of 6-4-0. They were led by senior captains Heather McVey, Amanda Helter and Tiffany Moore. As a young team, the girls had many close meets which came down to winning or losing by just a few points. Although a young and building team, the girls feel that their support of each other helped them to improve and make up for a lack in depth. With this growing team and strong support comes a positive outlook for an exciting future for the Cardinal swimmers.

According to senior captain Heather McVey, "We did really well for having a young team."

Profiting from hard work and determination were five Cardinal swimmers who qualified for the state meet. These swimmers were senior Heather McVey, juniors Erin LaBuda, Rachel Wong, and Courtney Gibson, and sophomore Ruthie Brown.

The diving team also had a strong season. They were led by senior captain Tiffany Moore and new coach, Jason Jones, who really helped them with their diving.

Wrestling

The 1993-94 wrestling team went through many grueling hours of pain and practice to accomplish their goals this season. Coached by Bob Galasso and lead by five seniors, the team had their mind set on being O.C.C. champions. With a league record of 3-2, the Cards received a second place standing. Even though they were not O.C.C. champs, the team won their own Cardinal Invitational and placed in the top five at several others. The team felt that the last few years have been years of improvement, and this was the year where it all came together.

Each individual competing also had his own goals in mind. Five of these members Jason Bally, John Mercer, Shawn Krysty, Russ Johnson, and Roger Sansuchat, all qualified after the Sectional Tournament to compete in Districts. From the District Tournament, Jason Bally and Shawn Krysty went on the the State meet where Krysty placed second in the 135 lb class.

League awards given out this season went to Shawn Krysty, 1st team O.C.C., Jason Bally, John Mercer, Rusty Johnson, 2nd team O.C.C., and Rusty Waring received Honorable Mention O.C.C. Senior Lee McNeer was this year's O.C.C. Scholar Athlete.

Coach Galasso summed up the entire season by saying, " We did much better than people expected of us. The reason for our strong finish was because of the solid team effort."

"We had a read a pretty good season even though we didn't end up winning the O.C.C."

Girls' Gymnastics

This year's girls' gymnastics team faced many hurdles throughout the course of the season. From injuries to illnesses, the team just could not stay healthy. The loss of sophomore Carletta Bruno in the middle of the season crippled the Cards even more. Despite all the difficulties though, the talented team still had a great season. For the first time in many years, they faced real opposition from more than one school. Led by senior co-captains, Claire Schneider and Kristen Hemmerly, the Cards finished an impressive third in the O.C.C. Newcomers Julie Moffitt, Katie Herrel, and Kim Eader made important contributions that helped the Cards succeed.

Unfortunately for the Lady Cards, they did not qualify for the state meet this year. In order to qualify, a team must place either first or second in the District Meet. The Cards were a close third with a season high score of 136.1. Some Cards felt the season should have turned out differently, as Claire Schneider stated, "All traditions end sometime, but it's a shame when they are stolen away unfairly." Many believed that the team was dealt a disservice with some of the scores they received during competition in comparison to other gymnasts.

"Of course we were disappointed that we didn't get to go to states, but the competition was intense and we were close the whole way." said senior Meredith Mehlman. Although they did not compete as a team, senior Kristen Hemmerly earned the honor of competing in the all-around competition at the state meet by placing at the District meet.

The end of the season did bring awards to some of the Lady Cards. Senior Claire Schneider was named O.C.C. Scholar Athlete and senior Kristen Hemmerly was named to the All-District team.

Boys' Gymnastics

After twenty-four years the boys' gymnastics program at TWHS has come to an end. The high school team was started in 1970 by Jerry Baker. At this time, Baker started both the boys and girls programs. While competing against teams mainly from Dayton, the programs flourished in no time. For several years Baker handled both teams, then later concentrated on only the boys team. Marc Small, Rick Aguirre, and Rob Strohl have also contributed to the program over the years as coaches. The current coach, Rob Strohl, has been in charge of the team since 1988, and he was the one to see the team off on a final farewell.

The period from 1978-1982 was a time of great achievement for the team. Their team scoring made them good enough to be ranked as an All-American team.

The program has had many great gymnasts pass through over the years. A couple of the greats were Scott Schuler, state champion two years in a row, and Richard Wickstrom who was also a state champion. Along with individual champions, the program has had one team State title. In 1987, while coached by Rick Aguirre, the boys' gymnastics team served as State Champions. They set a parallel bar record in that meet of 27.3 that has still not been broken. The team has placed second in the state several times, but 1987 was the one year of glory.

Only four teams were left in the state during this last year of competition. "It's not that the interest in Worthington's program is dying, but all the teams surrounding us are. Many have decided to go private," states Rob Strohl. Contributing to the decline of the sport is the expensive equipment and a lack of coaching. Also, as in earlier days, there are not many feeder programs into high school anymore.

Coach Strohl said, "Gymnastics does more physically, mentally, and gives more confidence than any other sport. It's a shame to see it all end."

As the last team to go through TWHS, the 1993-94 team had a rocky start at the beginning of the season. Coach Rob Strohl started the year off with only three gymnasts for the last year of competition. The first few meets they did not even have enough people to compete as a team. However, by the middle of the season the team had worked through their routines and picked up another gymnast to round out the team. "Throughout the season the boys worked well together and really supported each other," comments Rob Strohl. He attributes this to their third place finish in the State meet.

Boys' Basketball

The TWHS boys' basketball team surprised everyone this year en route to an impressive 12-9 record which included a strong third place finish in the O.C.C. As junior Brian Blankenship put it, "We really started out well this year, and I think we surprised a lot of people. "

The Cards opened the year by winning five of their first seven games, silencing the preseason critics and showing the rest of the league they were a force to be reckoned with. The Cards continued their winning ways with impressive victories over Groveport and Westerville South before losing to Walnut Ridge in the first round of postseason play.

Incredible talent and desire were displayed by the Cardinal players this year, and some were honored with postseason awards. Brian Blankenship was elected 1st team All O.C.C. while senior Mark Springer won 2nd team honors. Junior Mike Shebak was awarded honorable mention. Both Blankenship and Springer received District Honorable Mention as well. Springer summed up the season by saying, "This season was like a roller coaster with its ups and downs, but in the end, with our disappointing loss, I can only wish the guys luck next year."

When asked about what preparations he will make for next year's upcoming season, junior Andy Hamilton stated he will do nothing but, "Stay green and grow." Good luck Andy, and congratulations on a great season.

Girls' Basketball

The TWHS girls' basketball team entered the 1993-1994 season with one of the youngest teams the school has ever seen. With only three returning lettermen and no seniors, the Cards definitely had their work cut out for them. Under the leadership of captains Leslie Zahm and Laurie Rybak and first year coach Margo Postak, the Cards turned out an impressive 12-8 record and won the O.C.C. championship for the first time in four years.

The season began with three impressive victories over Springfield North, Westerville South, and Watkins Memorial where the average margin of victory was 20 points. "Those three victories really set the tone for our season," said Zahm. "This proved to everyone that we were a force to be reckoned with."

"Winning the O.C.C. this year with such a young team was very exciting. I think that this year served as a building year, and next year we'll be competing for the state title."

Captain Leslie Zahm

The Cardinals continued to play well, downing O.C.C. rivals Dublin and Gahanna in two very close games. The O.C.C. title came down to a late season game against crosstown rival Dublin. The Cards prevailed 55-48 to win to the O.C.C.

Leslie Zahm and Sarah Lopienski both earned 1st team O.C.C. honors while Heather Wheaton was awarded 2nd team O.C.C. Lopienski was also honored as the O.C.C. player of the year.

Captain Laurie Rybak summed up the season by saying, "We experienced some success this year, but I think that this was just one step towards our ultimate goal: a state championship." Way to go Cards, and good luck next year.

Boys' Tennis

The 1994 TWHS tennis team was a great success this year. Coached by Sandy Ferris and led by captains Jeff Sprankle, Geoff Smith, and Guhan Rammohan, the team finished with a 9-10 record. The Cards had many hopes at the beginning of the season, with Matt Fish and Sean Velie holding high state rankings.

The team had a tremendous start by winning their first four matches. Any of their losses during the year were considered close. The boys ended up finishing 2nd in the O.C.C. behind Dublin. Junior Sean Velie then went on to qualify out of the sectionals and play in the district matches where he did an excellent job.

Awards given out at the end of the year went to Sean Velie, second team O.C.C. first court and Matt Fish, first team O.C.C. second court. The doubles team of Guhan Rammohan and James Gain were awarded second team O.C.C. Guhan Rammohan was also awarded this year's O.C.C. Scholar Athlete.

The J.V. team was a great contributor to the program this year as well. Standouts to watch for in the future are Colin Yuckman, Tony Guzzo, and Davey Marks. Another J.V. star was French exchange student, Steve Farmer, who, unfortunately, will not be back next year.

With many of the starters returning for the next season and players practicing hard all summer, the Worthington tennis team could be seeing new heights in the next couple of years.

Girls' Lacrosse

After last year's loss in overtime at the Midwest Championship game, the Girls' Lacrosse team decided that next year they would return. They did return to the finals but lost to Shaker Heights 7-5. They were led by senior captains Amanda Lowe, Ally McCarthy and Mara Simpson.

On their quest to the Midwest, the lacrosse team finished their regular season 14-0-1. Highlights came by beating last years' Midwest champs, Hathaway Brown 16-5, Upper Arlington 16-8 and crosstown rivals WKHS 17-5. After completing their regular season unbeaten, the girls went on to win the sectional tournament without a loss and received the top seed in the Midwest.

Although the team did not finish the season the way they wanted, many of the players received individual awards. Second year coach, Tim Cave, received Coach of the Year. Mara Simpson, Lorena Opitz, and Laurie Rybak made first team Nationals, while Erin Porta, Julie Lundman and Alison Offenburger made second team Nationals. This year the Cards had four girls named as All-Americans: Laurie Rybak (Honorable Mention), Mara Simpson, Lorena Opitz, and Alison Offenburger. Lorena Opitz, and Mara Simpson were also selected to play in the North South All-Star Game.

By Alison Offenburger

"All season we worked hard, but also had fun. Regardless of the finals, we are still the best in the Midwest!"

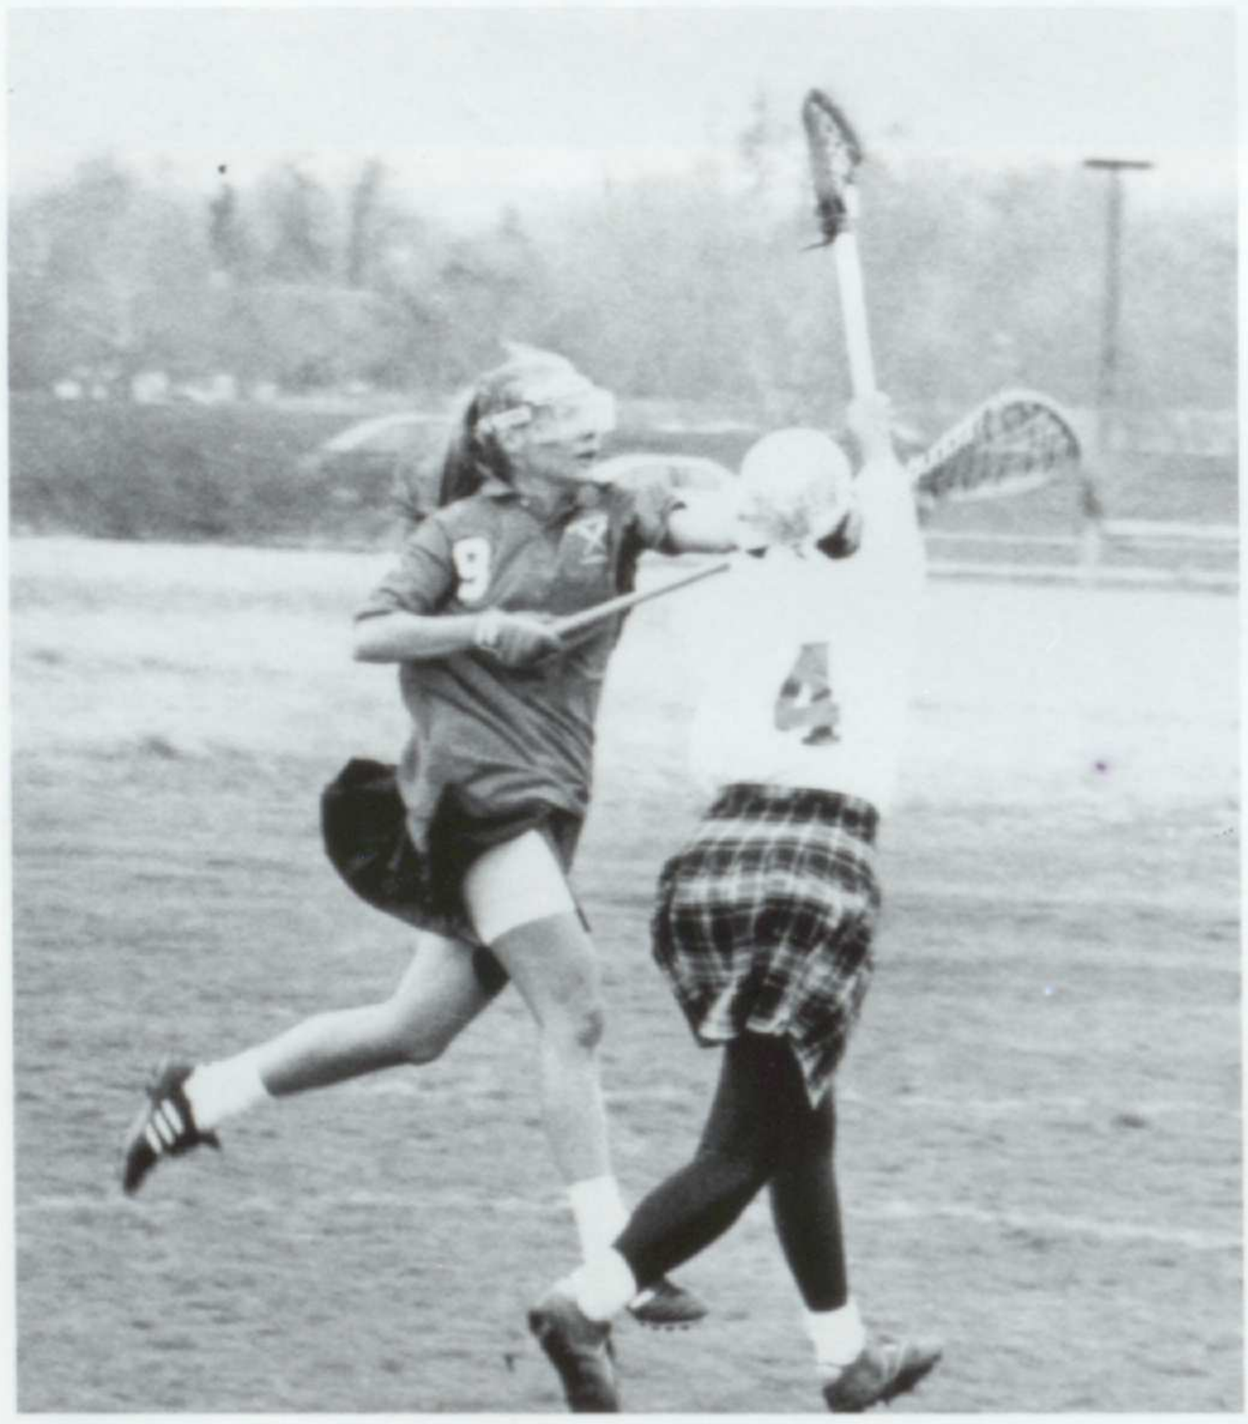
Captain Amanda Lowe

"We really clicked as a team. Since we were all good friends, it helped us pull together for an undefeated season."

Captain Ally McCarthy

"A great coach and girls who put time in during the off season helped us to obtain an undefeated regular season."

Captain Mara Simpson



As junior attack-girl Erin Porta gallantly leaps through the air, she feels invincible with her protective Leader goggles. Obviously her opponent couldn't stop her power.

Boys' Lacrosse

After a shaky season the Boys' Lacrosse team was back to the basics. Kevin Turner, Matt McSweeney, Jim Lafferty and Brandon Clark led the '94 squad as captains. The Cards finished their overall season with a 10-12 record. Although the team was young and inexperienced, the Cards pulled off an incredible win by beating Hilliard to get into the "A" bracket of the state tournament, finishing sixth.

Seniors Jim Lafferty, Kevin Turner, and Matt Granger made the Senior All Star Team. Jim Lafferty also received Honorable Mention All Midwest. Freshman Joey Leier received First Team All Midwest and sophomore co-captain, Matt McSweeney received Honorable Mention All Midwest. Next year many underclassmen will have to step up to make up for the loss of the twelve graduating seniors: Rusty Waring, Stuart Olson, Matt Granger, Chris Lay, Dave Rieder, Ben Pesich, Andy McIntyre, Jim Lafferty, Brandon Clark, Kevin Turner, Stan Bowen and Ryan Plowman.

Girls' Track and Field

With strong leadership from the many seniors on this year's track team, the Lady Cards had an extremely successful season. Led by captains Darby McVicker, Yvonne Smith, and Beth Stover, the Cards compiled a record of 4-1 in their regular dual meet competition.

Not only did they fare well in duel meets, they did very well in the invitationals that they competed in. They earned second in the O.C.C. and many athletes received O.C.C. recognition. Senior Emily Chivington was named O.C.C. Scholar Athlete and Darby McVicker received the Dispatch Scholar Athlete Award. Missy Novak received 1st Team All-O.C.C. honors for her school record breaking discuss throw of 125 feet, 10 inches. She also received Honorable Mention for shot put. Also receiving 1st Team honors were Yvonne Smith in the high jump, Kelly Curling, Kristie Ford, Katie Johnson, and Adele Soliz in the 400 meter relay, and Erika Warkentien, Erin Thorton, Darby McVicker, and Laura McKinley in the 3200 meter relay. Adele Soliz, Erika Warkentien and Darby McVicker were named 2nd team All-O.C.C. for the 100 meter dash, 1600 meter, and 3200 meter respectively.

As the Lady Cards moved on from the O.C.C.s, the recognition didn't stop. Adele Soliz, Yvonne Smith, Darby McVicker, Alison Butterfield, Erika Warkentien, and Erin Thorton were all named 1st Team All-District. Missy Novak and Alison Butterfield were also named 2nd Team All-District.

At the regional meet Alison Butterfield, Erika Warkentien, Laura McKinley and Erin Thorton received 2nd Team All-Region.

The Cards had a good day at the regionals qualifying Yvonne Smith along with the 4 by 100, 4 by 400, and 4 by 800 relay teams where the 4 by 800 team made up of Alison Butterfield, Erin Thorton, Laura McKinley, and Joanna Finch received All-State Honorable Mention.

With extreme talent shown by not only seniors but many underclassmen, it is obvious that next season will be just as successful as this season was.

Boys' Track and Field

The 1994 boys' track and field season carried on the winning traditions of the year before. After losing ten of their top fifteen point scorers, the boys looked to many incoming seniors and upcoming underclassmen to fill in the gaps left by last year's seniors. These boys did more than fill in, outscoring last year's team at the Amherst, Trotwood, and Worthington meets as well as coming within a mere seventeen points of first place in the O.C.C. meet. The Cards also won the Shamrock Invitational for the second year in a row.

The Cardinals were led by captains David Plouffe, Nilesh Shah, and Kevin Nickerson. This year's top point scorer was Trent Davis who had a combined 152.8 points over the course of the season, 60 points more than the nearest Cardinal. The 1600 meter relay team, consisting of Davis, Mike Shebak, Adrian Wheatley, and Doug Mead, carried the Cardinal banner all the way to the state meet where they finished ninth. These efforts, along with many other impressive displays of athleticism, showed clearly that the Cards will once again own the O.C.C. title in 1995.

By Billy Lawhon

"This year was a lot of fun and I'm glad we had as much success as we did. Hopefully next season the guys can do just as well and bring the O.C.C. title back to Worthington."

Softball

The 1994 Lady Cards softball team had a season of ups and downs this year. This was coach Spears third and final year. The only three seniors on the team were tri-captains Gretchen Alden, Natalie Harris, and Powlimi Nadkarni.

After finishing with a fourth place finish in the O.C.C, the team went on to lose in the first round of tournament play. Gretchen Alden stated, "In the tournament game we just made little mistakes that should have been corrected in the beginning of the year."

Individual players who had outstanding skills this year earned post season honors. Kerry Ruck was first team O.C.C., Gretchen Alden was second team and Natalie Harris earned Honorable Mention. Powlimi Nadkarni was this year's O.C.C. Scholar Athlete. Kerry Ruck also earned Honorable Mention All-District. The OHSCA Scholar Athlete award was given to Gretchen Alden and Powlimi Nadkarni.

Although their record was not what the team would have liked it to be, they had a good time together and wished they could be together one more year to display their talent. With only three seniors graduating, the cardinal softball team should show some serious competition in the next few years.

By Christine Nigh

"The girls showed a lot of potential this year. I think it really hurt us by not having many upperclassmen. We had fun this year and winning should be in the future for TW softball."

Baseball

The 1994 Cardinal baseball team rebounded from last year's disapointing, winless season to finish 10-12, fourth in the O.C.C. The Cards fought hard throughout the year to make this, Coach Cozze's last season, a memorable one.

The Cards began the year impressively and jumped out to a 3-1 record, the highlight coming with a thrilling 7-6 victory over future O.C.C. champ, Dublin. After suffering through a midseason slump, the Cards rebounded with wins over Groveport and Westervillle South. After an impressive first round trouncing of Upper Arlington, 12-5, in the tournament, the Cards lost a heartbreaker to Reynoldsburg, 6-5, to end their season.

"Our team made a tremendous improvement from last year, and I'm very proud of our efforts. I'm really going to miss the team, and I wish them good luck for next year."

Capt. Derek Tibbits

Senior pitcher Derek Tibbits, who amassed a record of 4-2 over the course of the year, was named the team's MVP. He was also awarded second team All O.C.C. honors, as was senior Todd Camp. Sophomore Marcello Garoffalo was named to the first team all O.C.C. and also received honorable mention for the All District team. Happy retirement Coach Cozze, and thanks for many years of success.

Boys' Volleyball

The Boys' Volleyball team had a great season this year. It was led by senior captains Yuki Matsuo, Tim McTigue, and Mike Smith. With a record of 20-5, the Cards were second in the O.C.C. and regional champs. They also finished first out of twenty-five teams at the Worthington Kilbourne Tournament and Junior Brian Blankenship was named to the All-tournament team. Showing her admiration of her team's accomplishments, Coach Kochheiser said, "This group of young men became one of the most talented groups of volleyball players in the state of Ohio. They were one of the most coachable groups that I've ever had the opportunity to work with."

With seven seniors leading the way, the Cards made it all the way to the state semi-finals before losing to Lebanon.

"The team played very well together and we achieved the goals that we set for ourselves. I believe we set a high standard for Worthington volleyball in the future."

Captain Tim McTigue

Besides having an outstanding season as a team, numerous players received special recognition. Brian Blankenship was named second team All-Ohio and Yuki Matsuo was named Honorable Mention All-Ohio.

Other team awards went to J.R. Hughes and Yuki Matsuo for best defensive players and Brian Blankenship for best offensive player. David Freed was named for the Coaches Award and Most Improved, along with Matt Cooper. Mike Smith, Tim Davis, and Yuki Matsuo also received the 110% Award, Best Setter, and Best Serving % respectively.

It is obvious by all of the accomplishments the team had that it was an extremely successful season.

A new project that National Honor Society participated in this year was the "Beyond the Freeway Tour". The "Beyond the Freeway Tour" is in conjunction with Call-Vac volunteer services which takes students to several locations throughout the downtown area. The first stop is a food pantry on the east side. There the students got an informational tour to see how the pantry really works. They got a sample menu and saw the amount of food actually allotted by food stamps. The next stop was the South Side Settlement House. This multi-purpose building serves as a recreation center, gym, classroom, theater, pool, day care and afterschool activity center for people living in the community. For a small fee people can take advantage of all the opportunities offered by the South Side Settlement House. The final destination landed the students at an open shelter for men. Here the students talked with the director of the shelter who gave them eye opening facts on homelessness. They also got to walk around and see the shelter and what actually goes on there. The NHS members said they really learned a lot on this tour, and they were surprised at the severity of the poverty here in Columbus. It made the students appreciate what they have and realize Worthington is a great place to grow up.

Early in August a group of girls known as the Cardinal Cadettes, assemble to begin preparation for the fall football performances. The girls start their season with three practices a week. Then later in August, they attend band camp, which consists of ten days of all day practicing in the hot summer sun. This year the cadettes also went to Kentucky for three days of drill team camp. There they learned new dances and techniques and began to get in shape for the long, grueling season ahead.

All the girls' hard work in the pre-season paid off. The drill team recieved an excellent rating at OMEA (Ohio Music Education Association) district marching band contest and one superior rating. At states this year, under the direction of captain Brooke Gallagher, co-captain Becky Rashid and director Mrs. Harris, the cadettes received a superior rating. The season unofficially ends in November but the cadettes still perform in numerous parades and pep rallies in the off season. This was a great year for the cadettes. They have a lot to be proud of including receiving high ratings and keeping our Cardinal spirit alive.

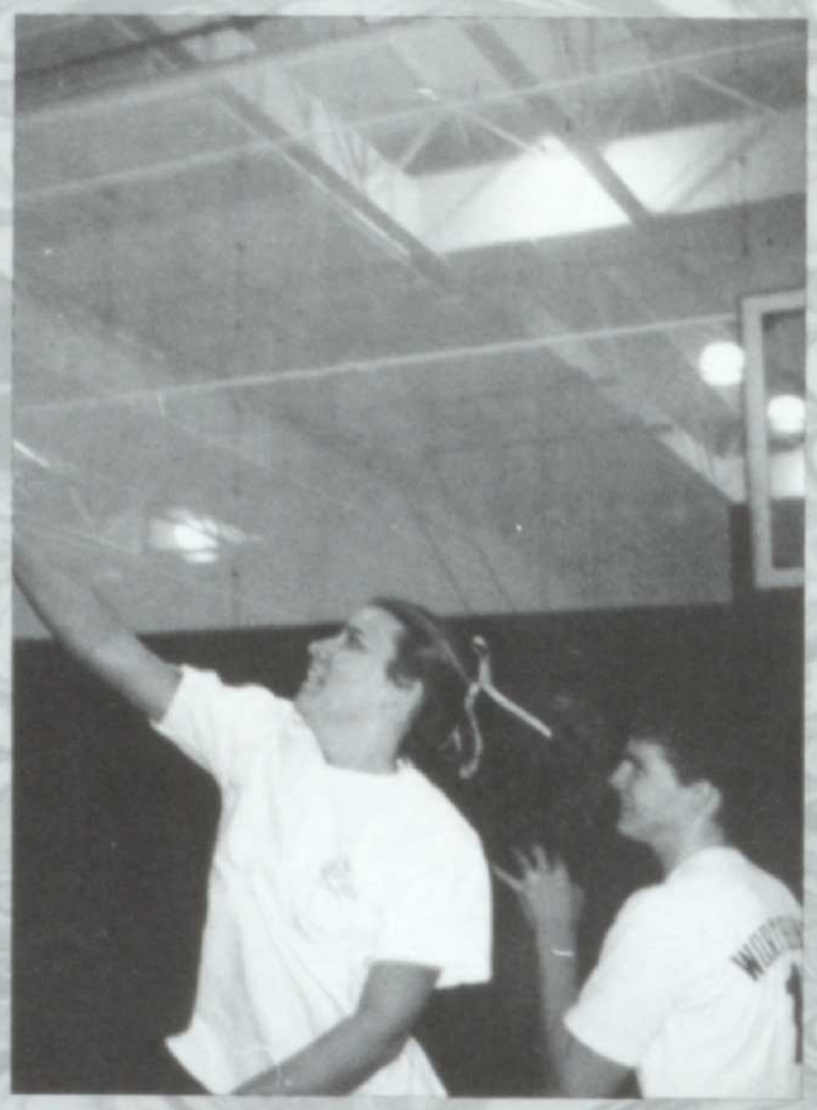
Intramural Basketball

"No! No! It can't go in. It just can't!" thinks Tim McTigue as he watches Kaci Blume's perfect three-pointer.



Yes, they may be just intramurals, bu these basketball games ARE officiated!

Under the leadership of key members Lory Thompson and Rachel Freeman, the Soccer Club has broadened their duties to include more than attending the games. While cheering loud at soocer games is still a major purpose of their organization, they have extended their tasks to making locker signs, advertising the games, and even decorating the guys' bedrooms before big games. Not only did this surprise the team, but it gave them a strong feeling of support. "To know that there are people who care about and support us really makes me want to win it all," states team member Todd Nielsen. This goes to show that school spirit and team support are vital elements that help the boys' soccer team be successful.

German Club

The German Club, once popular in the 1980's, was recently restarted after its termination when the high school split. This rebirth was due to student interest and the strong devotion of Frau Ker, the German teacher and club advisor.

In its second year, the German Club has worked hard to become as popular as it was in the previous decade. A major task of the group is to provide the student body with the opportunity to view German films. In the fall, the showing of "Swing Kids", a movie about Germany in the 1940's, attracted many individuals.

The future of the German Club is not known, but if it continues to grow it will definitely be here for a long time.

Indian Exchange

In October, a group of former and current Native American Culture Studies students took a field studies trip to Kentucky, Tennessee, and the Smokey Mountains of North Carolina. This Indian Exchange was funded partly by the students and from fundraising efforts such as sundae sales.

The students were accompanied by several teachers and Native American teenagers from a corresponding high school. This week-long venture not only taught a lifestyle, but it explained some mysteries of the Indian Culture. "Although I knew a lot before, this trip gave me a better understanding of Indians overall," states Amanda Lowe, a senior on the trip.

Whatever they got from it, those who were a part of the Indian Exchange will never forget the experience they had.

Speaking Out

Student Mediation

DEAL WITH IT THROUGH MEDIATION

Student Mediation is a group which has grown intensively during the past years. It has gone from only a few kids to a whole staff. During this school year the leadership board was made up of the following students: Sangeeta Senapati (in charge of training), Erik Remy, Stu Olsen (recruiting), Kathryn Duche (Office Manager), Rachel Wong and Quentin Fields (both in charge of public relations). Lara Lebeiko was the General Coordinator. She made sure that everyone did their job and did it well. Stuart also helped Lara do her job. The main responsibility of a mediator is to go over all of the referral forms and decide which situations need mediation. All information on each case is confidential. This year there were over thirty different conflicts solved through mediation.

PLAYING IT SAFE:

Safe was a group that was recently started in 1993 by Jaime Pack. This being only the second year that this group has been in existence, it has been, by far, one of fastest growing clubs in history.

This year one of the main projects of this group was the Earth Summit Workshop. It was held on Saturday, March 5 and lasted from nine to two in the afternoon. The main events were environmental speakers such as Shelby Jackson from the E.P.A. (Environmental Protection Agency), and Peg Hanley from the Ohio Waste Authority. They also played games and did group activities at the Summit. This event was held at school in the commons. President Sara Johnson mentioned that the Earth Summit went, "Very well despite it being the first year it was held."

Besides the Earth Summit, this year was an organizational one. Sara spent much of her time figuring out who was or was not in S.A.F.E. She went as far as changing many of the commitee heads in the middle of the year. After these committee heads were changed, the recycling, presentations, and point system ran much more smoothly. Sara added, "It seemed as if we got twice as much done second semester than we did the first."

The boys' water polo team is an activity which has been hidden from recognition. This squad, consisting of players from Thomas Worthington and Worthington Kilbourne, has been the State Runner-up the past two years. Senior Aaron Davis felt the team did really well this season. "We all got along and were able to really play as a team."

This activity begins in the summer with long conditioning practices. It then continues into the fall with practices twice a day, one before school and one after school.

Water polo is a full contact sport. "There is a lot that goes on underwater that no one can see," states Aaron.

The two required referees are on the outside deck of the pool, thus they miss a lot of the fouls. The game is played on both ends of the pool, but touching the bottom of the pool is forbidden. All their hard work pays off, but their success goes unnoticed.

Although water polo is a sport at every other school in Ohio, it is only considered a club at TWHS. If water polo were to become a sport, it would cost a lot more money and they would require the Kilbourne players to separate from the Thomas members. "I wish it would be a sport, but there are too many variables involved," Davis said. Even though it does not get as much recognition as other sports, boys water polo continues its excellence.

"Our season was a definite success. The team worked really hard and had a good time."

As a typical practice continues, it appears there is some congestion in the deep end. This could make practicing difficult.

No one can tell if it is warmer in the pool or out. Coach Callahan, of course, prefers to be outside.

LINWORTH

Down the road a ways there lies a little place commonly known as Linworth Alternative School. It is true that many people who do not attend the AP do not know much about it. Many of Linworth's programs are terrific, but one is really worth talking about.

The Senior Walkabout Program gives students a taste of the real world. Many people think it is a time to have lots of fun and not go to any classes. Well, guess what? That is only a small part of it. Walkabout helps the AP seniors learn more about themselves and perhaps discover interesting career opportunities. In addition to working for no wages, the students have to keep a daily journal of their activities. Each student stays at one place for nine weeks. During that nine weeks, the students must attend a weekly seminar at Linworth to describe what they experienced and how their walkabout is working. Walkabout pushes the students to strive and achieve goals set at the beginning of this unique program. The student gains qualities of responsibility, punctuality, and reliability. They also gain on the job experience which can not be taught in any classroom. The Walkabout program is exclusively for seniors; however, every nine weeks all of the Linworth classes go on an interim, which is like a mini-walkabout. Everyone gets a taste of what is to come their senior year at Linworth.

Many misconceptions surround Linworth. We got the chance to visit the Linworth campus on several occasions. We both attend all of our classes at the main campus, so visiting there was a new, eye-opening experience. Admittedly we can vouch for each other that it was scary at first. We did not know what to expect. Once we slipped in the door, however, we were greeted by the director, Wayne Harvey. We soon learned that most of people at the were very open and friendly. We got a tour of the school, encountered people we have not seen in years, and met some new people as well. While we were visiting the Linworth campus, we sensed a much more relaxed atmosphere than that of main campus. To us, it seemed more like a college than a high school. The students were entrusted with responsibility and treated like adults, not like children. In turn, by being treated like an adult, the people down the road seemed much more mature as a whole. After visiting on several occasions, Dave and I both decided that we should have visited the alternative program a long time ago. I guess it just goes to show that people should not judge a so-called book by its cover.

"Man...I never woulda' thought I'd get all the way from here to now. Colonial Hills was fun, ya' know; but I missed my old friends when we'd moved to Worthington Estates. But, ya' make new friends; plus those at Worthingway, then we're all back together again for the final years. Too, the broken arms (hardly ever played any golf), Dr. Lude's braces, gettin' my driver's license, and finally 18.
Wow!

THE GREAT SHAVING CREAM WAR

By lunch people everywhere, could feel the tension mount.
After school the parking lot'd be a war zone
in my mind not a doubt.
During the lunch periods
they left headed to their local store
To buy the shaving cream
Cans and cans galore.

By ninth period,
classrooms were a buzz.
The talk was of shaving cream that deadly, foamy fuzz.

...The last bell sounded
on that last school day.
Enough of school work
Now it's time to play.

So without a pause
we charged out the door.
I even noticed drops of shaving cream
on the floor...

As we neared the door
the smell of barbasol in the air
Some people bore expressions of fear and despair.

I will never forget that glorious first sight of thousands of students engaged in a fight.

We got outside broke through the crowd
by the door.
I got a good look at it–
it truly was war.

Hundreds of students
all covered in foam
I didn't know whether to stay or to bolt on home.

In the parking lot
a true free-for-all students hurling the infamous
"Shaving cream puff balls"...

So on went the day
On that sunny afternoon
many a person was covered many a car met its doom.

That is how we showed through the Great Shaving
Cream War,
"We love you all!"
From the class of '94.

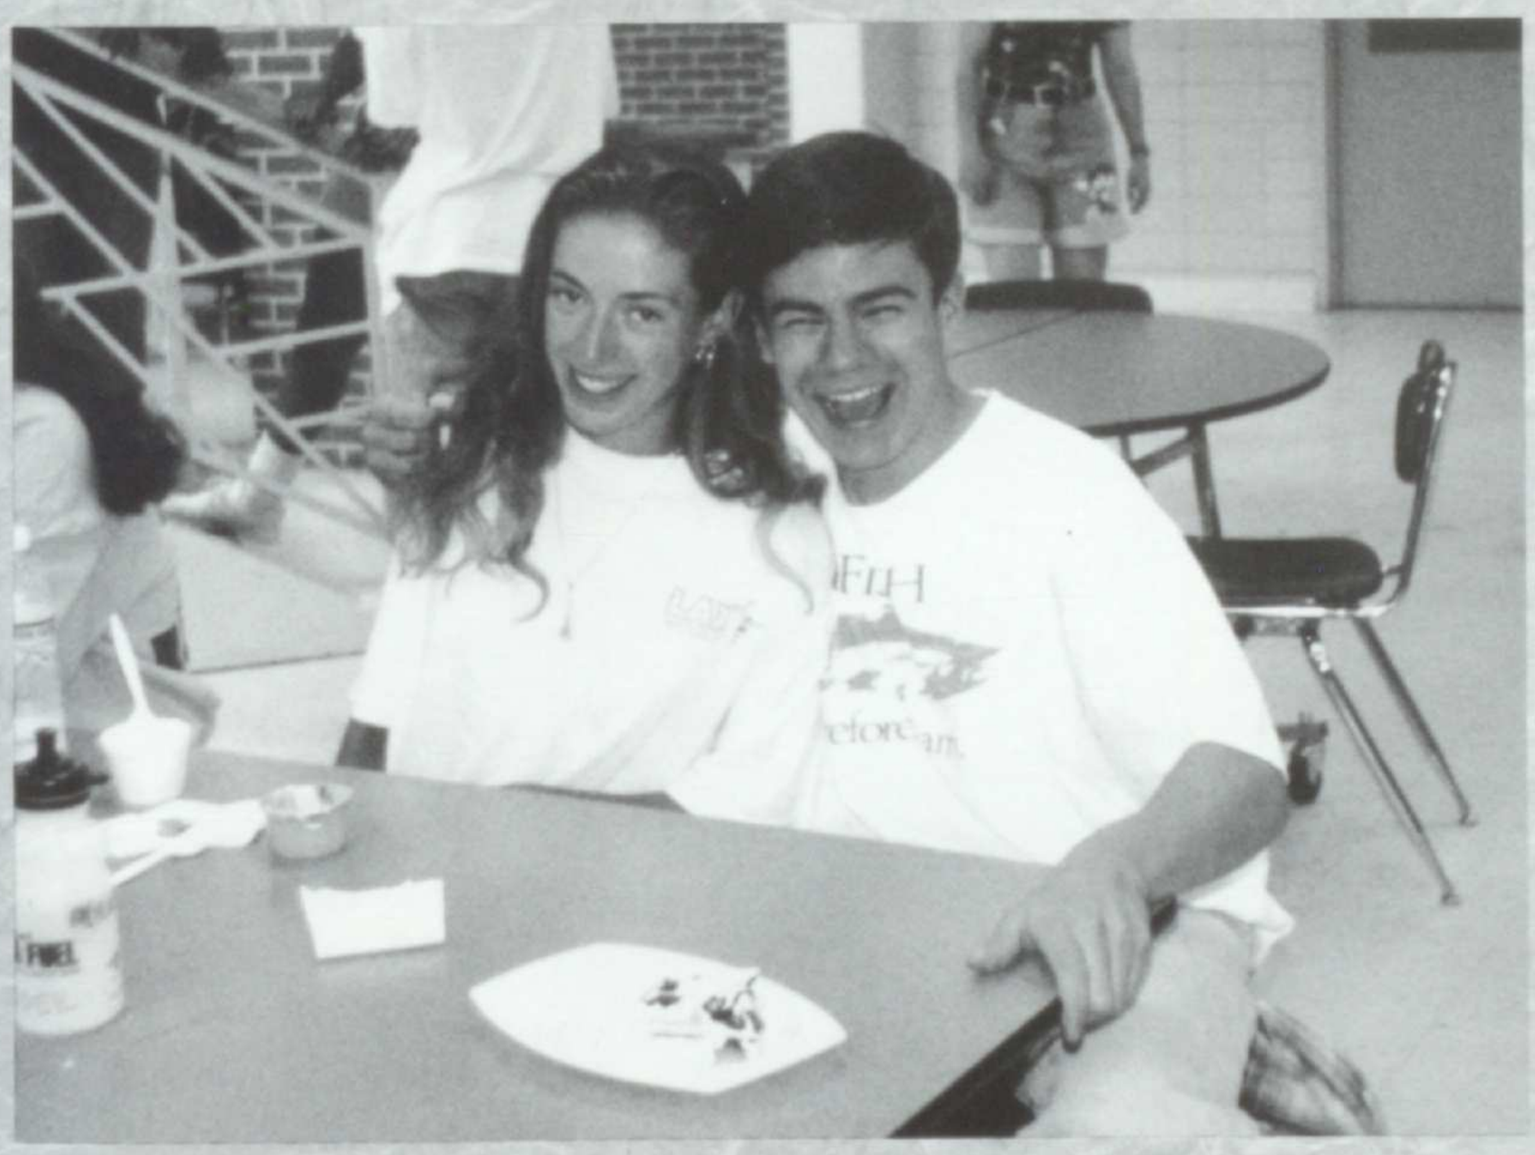
CLOSING



Laurie Ryback and Andy Rowe try to contain their overwhelming enthusiasm for the time they are privileged to spend in the TWHS cafeteria.

Desperate and dateless, Andy McIntyre just hangs out hoping for someone to come by.

THE CLASS OF 1994 REMEMBERS WHEN...

Paige Renske: We had to shake the dew in Florida and when we lusted after the Name-brands.

Liz Oommen: We wore similar outfits on the same day.

Laurie Cook: Brian Cooper drew pictures of our Global History class naked.

Chris Lay: People had Princeton haircuts and tipped their hats back.

Sarah Johnson: Cruisin' the lot at Carriage Place was a weekend ritual.

Beth Stover: The Yellow Bandana Gang tried to rule the school and when we learned it all at Max & Erma's.

Jeff Gibbons: The Grateful Dead was a music group and not a fashion statement.

Katie Gerber: Jon Keeling wore a torpedo around his neck during the Gulf War.

Shelbi Nelson: We had a food fight at Denny's- What's going on?!

Tiffany Moore: We spent late Friday nights cooking strange concoctions to munch on.

Yvonne Smith: My hair was seven inches tall.

Lee McNeer: When the tracks were the hang out.

Ami Baumgardner: Your high school goal was to get a pride pin.

Dave Hunt: People used to be cool.

Sarah Pettigrew: The beach served many purposes.

Mark Chudo: Paul Helling and I wrecked three cars in one month.

Greg Giessler: I can't remember!? Oh yea, the state championship!

Marcie Johnson: Drinking cookies and orange juice while trying to see through my foggy contacts.

Christine Nigh: Eating contests with Sarah and, of course, being with Jason.

Marcie Scherr: Skate clothing and "Alternative" music were disliked by 95% of Worthington.

Claire Schneider: "Shooting the moon" out the back window of Christine's van on the way to soccer semi-finials and then breaking "The Moose" at the game.

Meredith Mehlman: They tried to fix "The Moose" with everyone's bubble gum, and it still fell apart.

Megan Kelly: Freshmen were cute, polite, and quiet, and senior year was a blow off.

Sherrie Bossart: Time went slowly and everything in high school was new and exciting. I actually can faintly remember a time when the guys shaved and the girls worried about what they were going to wear the night before.

Aaron Hainer: We were freshmen and we were normal sized. As the years go by the freshmen seem to shrink.

Jason Hull: When we actually cared about our schoolwork. Now we just blow it off because we don't care. It's a great feeling!

Nathan Swanson: The automatic sprinklers went on as the band marched onto the field for a post game show.

Tami France: When there was no dynacom and we used to walk between main campus and old Kilbourne for classes.

Amy Hamilton: When we actually came to school at a decent time. What is with this 7:30 a.m.?

Jonathan Stanley: When Mr. Northrup spelled Cards, C-A-D-R-S, at a pep rally.

Stephanie Enochs: When the class of 1994 used to all be friends.

Darby McVicker: We were freshmen and the seniors seemed so much older.

Danielle Khoury: Freshman year everyone went to Dublin AMC on Friday night and on Saturday everyone went to the Continent.

Paskorn Jittjumnongk: Everybody thought high school was cool, but then we got here and found out we were wrong.

Ashley Coury: We would have "recess" after lunch.

Mike Nordstrom: When we were freshmen people actually cared about school. But now, Senioritis denies all thought.

Katie Rummell and Brooke Gallagher: The keys were locked in the car with the lights on at prom.

Pam Peacock: We had to go to the library when a bat flew into our English 10 classroom.

Jane Doe: The girls at WKHS used to be skinny.

Gretchen Alden: We wrote on the cafeteria walls the last day of school.

Jenny Sprecher: We experienced the convenience of modern invention with the "cavern" like locker rooms at the old Kilbourne building.

Allyson McCarthy: Politics were left in Washington, D.C. .

Sarah McElwee: We came to school the day after the seniors T.P.'d.

Kevin Turner: Seniors used to play on the Lacrosse team.

Katie Johnson shows her pearly whites knowing she's hanging on the hottest guys in the freshman class.

Above: These HB's are on their way to the prom, but they have to make it down this troubling staircase first.

"Hey , I'm a cool guy!" says the infamous Rusty Schuster.

Trapped in the cafeteria for closed lunch, this group of juniors make the best of their imprisonment.

"I don't go any where without the aid of my security pillow ," says Mike Smith.

Middle left: "Oh goodness," says Megan Abernathy. " Look what I found growing inside of my ear!"
Middle: After flunking out of cosmetology school Kristen Foster finds herself back at TWHS; however she still hasn't mastered the art of applying make-up.
Middle Right: Lee Stevens has a sour look on his face because, once again, he was caught skipping class.

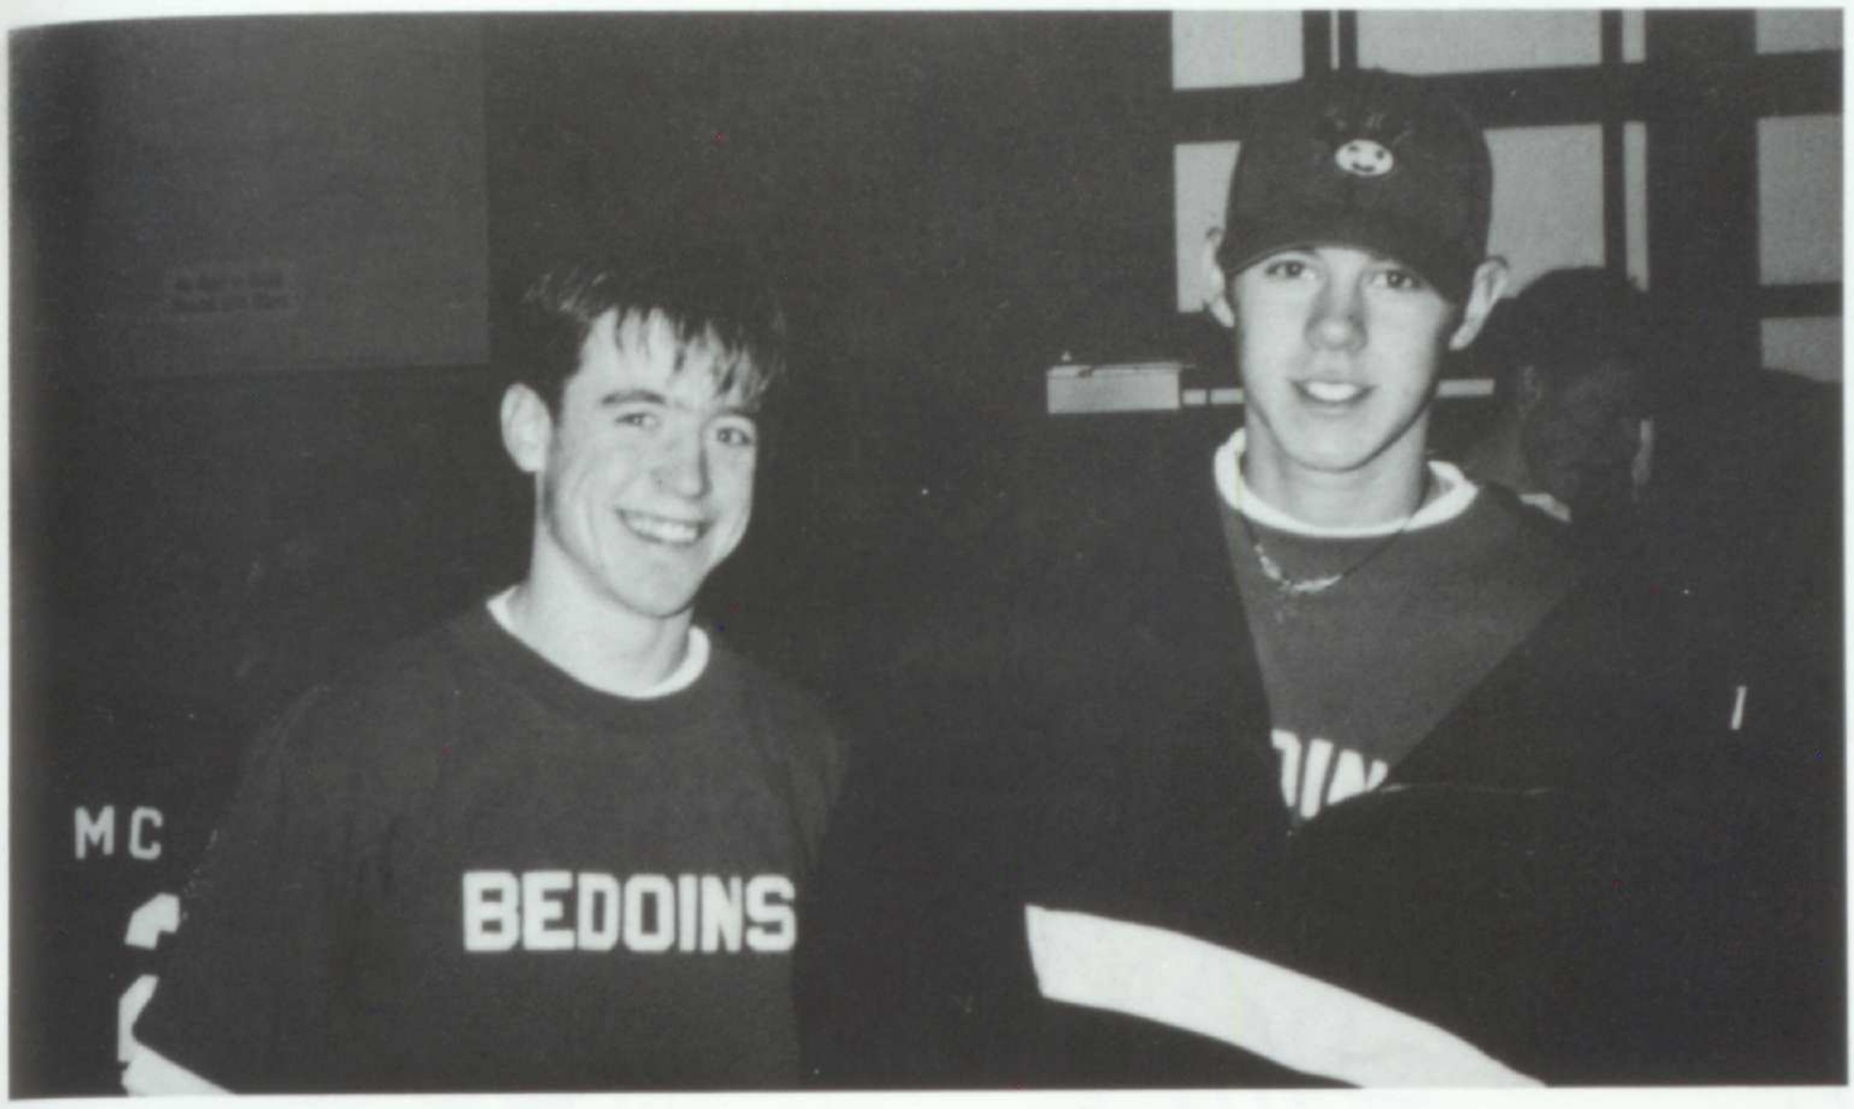
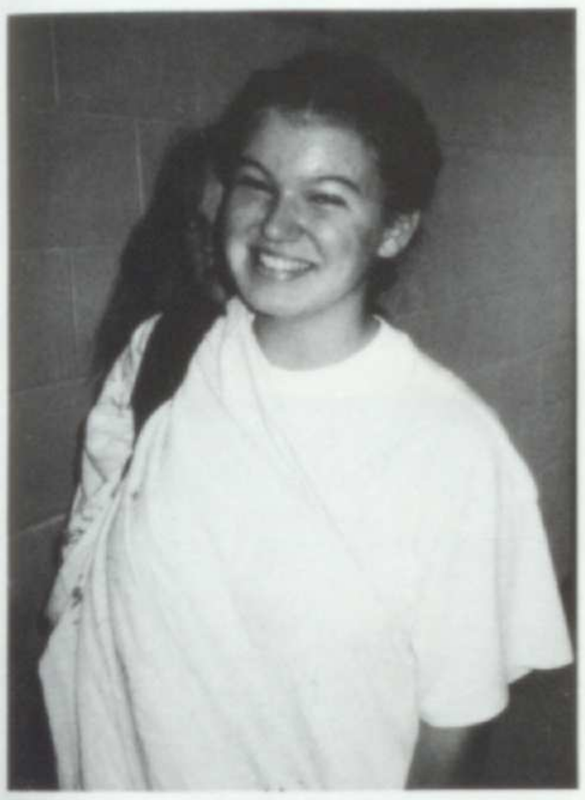
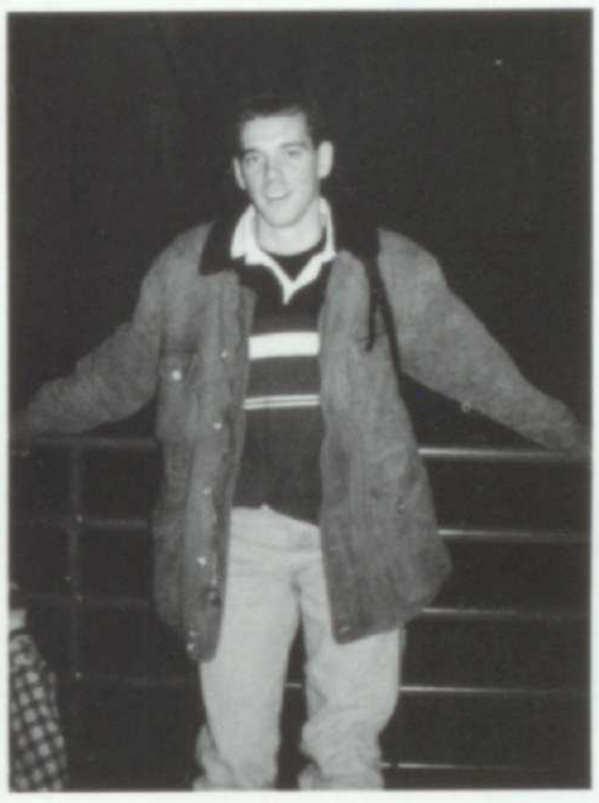
As Darren Reiher flashes us that winning smile of his, Chris Lay does his best to imitate him. "Nice try Chris, but it'll never be as sweet as Darren's."

Don't keep your face that way too long Matt; it might freeze.







Stan Bowen, Brandon Parmer, and Jake Schubert made their hit debut in The Three Amigos Take the Ice.

Middle left: Michelle Marshall shows her joy for being a TWHS student.
Middle: "Get that camera out of my face or I'll turn around and jump!" exclaims Brandon Shroy.
Middle Right: Siamese twins Marcie Scherr and Danielle Khoury show that life can be good even when joined at the cheek.
Above: Tammy Tuttle, Rachel Quillen and Dawn Luciano show their astronomical amounts of creativity and style which are characteristic of many underclassmen.
